EX-KAISER IS TO BE TRIED ALLIED EDICT

Supreme Council Does Not Deem Action Needed Now

Considers Disposition of 240,000 Russian Prisoners Still in German Camps.

(ASSOCIATED PRESS DISPATCH) PARIS, July 19.—The supreme council of the peace conference today discussed the disposition of 240,000 Russian prisoners of war who are still in Germany. These prisoners were held by Germany after the armistice and have been fed at the expense of the entente powers.

As many of them are badly infected with Bolshevism, Poland and other countries through which they would go on their way back to Russia have objected to giving them passage for fear of Bolshevik propaganda. Moreover, it is held they would be either forced into the Bolshevik army or killed if sent home. The expense of maintaining them in Germany, however, is becoming burdensome.

The council received a protest from the Sheikh of Aidin, Asia Minor, concerning atrocities, which the Greeks are alleged to have committed upon Turks in the neighborhood of that city when they landed there. It was decided to send a mission of military officers to investigate the charge.

The council has taken no action concerning the punishment of the former emperor of Germany and has not even considered the report from the commission on responsibilities which does not favor the peace conference allowing Field Marshal Von Hindenburg or any one else to be substituted for the former monarch.

The council appears to be firm in the conviction which is held by military officials of the entente powers, that William Hohenzollern must be punished as it would be impossible to secure the punishment of military and civil officials in Germany who are charged with atrocities, if the former emperor is exempted.

A list of these officials and officers is to be supplied the German government soon. As yet there is no knowledge here of the preparation of it.

EMBARGO IS PLACED ON COASTWISE TRAFFIC BY N. Y. SEAMEN'S STRIKE; SETTLEMENT POSSIBLE AT CHICAGO

(ASSOCIATED PRESS DISPATCH) NEW YORK, July 19.—As a result of the seamen's strike along the Atlantic and Gulf coast a freight embargo on coastwise traffic was announced Friday by the coastwise steamship companies operating under federal control.

CHICAGO, July 19.—Hope of ending the building trades tieup was expressed today when it was announced that a delegation of members of the Building Trades Council would seek an audience with the contractors who locked the men out in an effort to bring about an agreement.

More than 100,000 men are idle in the building trades and this number is expected to be largely increased today when the various supply companies join the builders and cease delivery of materials.

The lockout was precipitated by a strike of 16,000 carpenters who demanded a raise in wages from eighty cents to $1 an hour.

In addition to the enforced idleness of the more than 100,000 men in the building trades, about 10,000 employees of the various packing plants in the stock yards were on strike today. The men quit work, their spokesman announced, because they disliked to have guards around the plants.

Seward C. Frazee, superintendent of Wilson and Company said that the strikes are the result of a radical element among the men.

The city of Chicago was confronted with a serious situation concerning its safety from fire today when fire department engineers and their assistants voted to quit work. This action was taken as the result of the failure of the city to meet the demands of the engineers for an increase in wages. About 250 men are affected.

The men are civil service employees and cannot "strike" for that reason they voted to "resign."

YOUNGSTOWN, O., July 19.—Telephone operators of the Central Union and Ohio State companies who have been on strike for a week today rejected the companies' offer of $3 a week raise in pay and virtual recognition of the union. The operators ask that girls who stayed at work when the strike was called be discharged. Electricians of the two companies on strike for a month remain out pending settlement of the operators' claims though the electricians have a settlement on a basis of a 20 per cent wage increase and recognition of the union. Service is being maintained by strike-breakers.

Carmen To Strike

CHICAGO, July 19.—The employees of Chicago's transportation lines have decided by an overwhelming vote to go on strike if their demands for increased wages and better working conditions are not met by the companies. Out of a total of 13,039 votes cast, 12,951 were in favor of calling the strike, while 88 were opposed to it, according to the official returns announced today.

A number of women cashiers of the elevated line cast their votes with the men in favor of calling the strike. They ask for an increase in wages from $3.06 a day to $6. The men demand a 77 per cent increase in wages, an eight hour day and better working conditions.

CHICAGO, July 19.—Every engineer and his assistant in the Chicago fire department walked out at 8 o'clock this morning in accordance with a decision reached yesterday after the city had declined to meet the demands of the men for higher wages. Two hundred and fifty city employees were affected by the walk-out.

BOSTON, Mass., July 19.—The strike on the Boston Railway system entered its third day today and although there were somewhat better facilities for entering and leaving the city by train and auto bus, methods of transportation within the business districts were still entirely inadequate. Yesterday several persons were injured in the crush and one man was killed in a jam of automobiles.

Meanwhile efforts to reach a basis of adjustment of the controversy over wages were renewed.

Arraign Youth For Murder of Deputy Marshal

CLEVELAND, O., July 19.—Patrick Keibort, 18, younger of the two Cleveland bandit brothers charged with the murder of Special Deputy Marshal Ernest Gray near Willoughby on Wednesday, will be given a preliminary hearing before Justice Calaway at Painesville today. Patrick, who claims that his brother, Andrew, 20, fired the shots which killed Gray and wounded two other special deputies when the brothers were cornered, entered a plea of not guilty to first degree murder Thursday. Andrew at that time waived examination and was held to the grand jury.

WILSON IS PLEASED WITH ATTITUDE OF SOME G. O. P. SOLONS

(ASSOCIATED PRESS DISPATCH)

WASHINGTON, July 19.—President Wilson's advisers said today he was highly pleased with the attitude of republican senators with whom he has conferred on the peace treaty and the league of nations covenant. He also was said to feel that the conference at the White House had cleared up many doubtful points in the minds of the senators he had seen.

The president has no appointments today, but expected to see more republican senators Monday and in the days following.

He has conferred with seven senators since sending out his invitations to them to come to the White House and hopes to see practically all of them before starting on his tour of the country.

Mr. Wilson devoted most of his time today to executive work.

WOMAN AUTOIST IS HELD FOR KILLING CHILD IN A YARD

(ASSOCIATED PRESS DISPATCH)

CLEVELAND, July 19.—Mrs. Victoria Kruszyński was to be arraigned in police court today in connection with the death last night of Mary Madigan, aged six years, when the automobile driven by Mrs. Kruszyński in her first attempt to drive alone, became unmanageable, climbed the embankment in front of the Madigan home and crushed the child to death against the porch.

George Menzies, aged two years, was killed in his mother's arms last night when an automobile, driven by the child's father, collided with a street car. Mr. Menzies and his wife suffered bruises.

Allied Consuls Enter Germany

WASHINGTON, July 19.—Though British and French consuls already have entered Germany for the purpose of re-establishing trade relations with that country, the state department here has been unable to do more than organize its own consular service for similar functions pending authority to send them into Germany. This authority cannot be secured, in the opinion of the development until the peace treaty has been finally ratified.

American customs law require the certification by American consular officers of goods imported into the United States unless means can be found for extending temporary authority of that kind to some of the American consular clerks who remained in Germany during the war, or to the consular representatives of other powers who may undertake such certification as a matter of commodity, it is believed American trade must labor under this handicap in the international competition until the exchange or ratification of the treaty.

RESUME SUNDAY EXCURSIONS.

CLEVELAND, July 19.—Sunday excursions on railroads running out of Cleveland will be resumed tomorrow, officials declared today, following an order of the railroad administration rescinding the war-time act banning excursion trains. Excursions to Columbus, Canton, Wheeling and other points have been announced for tomorrow.

Score of O. S. U. Professors Quit For Better Pay

COLUMBUS, July 19.—Professor A. M. Schlesinger of the American History department, who was appointed by Governor Cox to write a history of Ohio's part in the war, is one of a score of professors and instructors at Ohio State university who have announced their resignations to accept better positions at other educational institutions or in business.

It became known today that Professor Schlesinger probably will become head of the American History department at the University of Iowa. Among other professors leaving Ohio State are Charles Sheard, E. A. Cottrell, M. M. Leighton, Homer C. Corry (will practice law in Springfield), A. E. Davies, A. E. Flowers and O. C. Lockhart.

DRYS TO FORCE A DECISIVE VOTE IN THE HOUSE TODAY

(ASSOCIATED PRESS DISPATCH)

WASHINGTON, July 19.—Before the house resumed consideration today of the prohibition enforcement bill, one part of which already has been perfected, dry leaders announced they would insist upon a night session in the hope of letting the country know through the Sunday morning papers that the measure with its drastic provisions had been passed and was ready for the senate.

First on the program today was the question of amendments to the favoring extract section, half a dozen of which were introduced by Chairman Volstead, for a week or more of the chairman has been trying to hit upon some compromise amendment which would permit housewives to keep on flavoring their puddings, while at the same time placing enough restrictions on the extract industry to prevent use of its products as an alcoholic beverage.

Radical prohibition members were ready to fight for changes in that part of the bill which would permit a sick man, with the aid of a physician to get as much as one quart of liquor a month. They said it was too much. Chairman Volstead, however, was prepared to resist any attempt to cut down the sick man's share.

WASHINGTON, July 19.—There was a recess today in senate debate on the peace treaty as well as in consideration by the foreign relations committee.

At two meetings yesterday the committee made a little progress in preliminary reading of the treaty text, but gave up hope of completing the task this week and adjourned until Monday.

The senate also adjourned over today, but many senators were at work on addresses to be made during debate next week. Senators Pomeroy of Ohio, and Beckham of Kentucky, both democrats, have announced they will speak Monday.

HANGS HIMSELF

NEWARK, O., July 19.—Francis O. Haga, 44, a carpenter, was found dead in his children's playhouse early today having hung himself with a clothes line during the night. He had been in ill health following a sun stroke several years ago. A widow and three children survive.

ANSELL RESIGNS

WASHINGTON, July 19.—Lieutenant Colonel Samuel T. Ansell, former acting judge advocate general of the army, and the central figure in the controversy within the war department regarding military justice, handed his resignation to Secretary Baker today.

Every Army of Entente Host is Represented in Passing Procession.

(ASSOCIATED PRESS DISPATCH)

LONDON, July 19.—Nineteen thousand allied soldiers—picked men from famous combat divisions the names of which are written largely on the pages of history of the world war—marched through London's streets today in celebration of the return of peace. The line of parade was more than six miles in length and required over an hour to pass a given point.

King George, with other members of the royal family, army and navy officers and leaders of both houses of parliament, stood on the steps of the Victoria Memorial in front of Buckingham Palace to receive the salutes of the warriors.

A magnificent reception was given the marching hosts. The streets were bright with allied colors, some thoroughfares being flanked by stucco pylons supporting allegorical figures of victory. Eager spectators jammed every point of vantage, even the roofs being black with cheering thousands. Large numbers of people camped on the streets all night to hold places from which the parade could be witnessed. Huge grand-stands accommodating thousands were erected for demobilized soldiers, an effort being made to arrange that every soldier home on leave from France should see the procession. Among those who witnessed the parade from these stands were four thousand widows, mothers and children of officers and men killed during the war.

London for the past week has been overflowing with those who came to the city for the celebration. Many were forced to seek shelter in police stations and churches and large numbers slept on park benches.

The 19,000 paraders camped at Kensington Gardens yesterday and last night. They were drawn from the British, American, French, Italian, Belgian, Japanese, Polish, Russian, Portuguese, Serbian, Slavonian and Czechoslovakian armies.

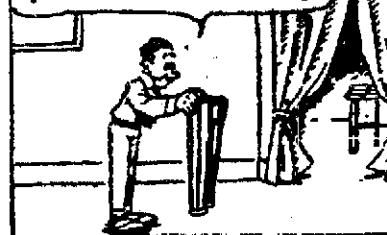

The marchers were arranged in alphabetical order, the Americans leading the parade. The Americans, led by General John J. Pershing, marched in three battalions of 33 officers and 1100 men each. Belgium had in line 440 officers and men, led by General Gillian; France was represented by 900 men and Italy by 835. There were five officers and fifty men for each of the other allied nations.

Behind the allied section came Vice Admirals Beatty and Keyes and other high officers of the Grand

MORE CRIMES BY MEXICANS SHOWN BY LATE REPORTS

NEW YORK, July 19.—The National Association for the Protection of American Rights in Mexico announced tonight it had received a telegram from Tampico dated July 17 indicating that the camp of the Atlantic Refining Co., near Port Lobos, Mexico, had been raided and the semi-monthly pay roll of $10,000 stolen.

The message said it was believed the raiders were Carranza soldiers.

WASHINGTON, July 19.—The murder by Mexican bandits of Peter Catron, an American citizen, July 7, near the town of Valos in the Mexican state of San Luis Potosi, was reported today to the state department.

President Wilson late today notified Gov. Robertson of Oklahoma that he had requested the state department to do everything possible in connection with the killing of John W. Correll, an American citizen and the attack on his wife and son by Mexicans in Tampico oil district.

The president's message sent in response to a telegram from the Oklahoma governor asking that some action be taken in the Correll case.

"Your telegram of July 12 has received my most serious consideration and I beg to assure you that through the state department I am seeking to do everything that is possible with regard to the tragical and horrible case of the treatment of Mr. Correll."

MEN SELECTED TO DRAW UP NEW CHARTER

COMMITTEE OF 200 NAMED MEN FOR IMPORTANT WORK

Adherents of New Plan Will Push it to as Early Vote as Possible

EXPOSURE IS HELP

One Man Claims and "Physiological Moment" Will be Taken Advantage of

Accepting the explosion in the City Council this week as the best ammunition that could be provided for them, backers of the Commission Form of Government plan for Lima are getting ready to hold an election as soon as possible.

One well known enthusiast over the new government plan stated to the Times this morning that the election would be held as soon as the law will permit.

"Fine for Us."

"The blow-up that has occurred this week is just the thing for us," this man continued. "Whereas it was difficult to interest many people in the movement a few weeks ago, now voters are flocking to our standard unasked. They say that they have lost all confidence in the Republican administration and have no hope that things are going to get better. They say that they are willing to take a shot at the new proposition, feeling it can be no worse."

Name Commission

The Committee of Two Hundred which is to direct the campaign for the Commission Form, has named the men who will be asked to draw up the charter which would be submitted at the polls at the same time the whole plan would be passed upon by the voters.

The gentlemen who have been selected to perform this very important work are named on this page.

The charter is a very important feature of the commission plan of management and will have much to do with the way things would be conducted, should the plan carry at the polls.

Names of men to be considered for commissioner have not been named. Trades & Labor Council, however, has named a number of men that would be acceptable to organized labor. No doubt there will be many candidates when the proper time comes.

fleet, with a naval contingent of 4,000 men. Then came 1,000 men from the Mercantile Marine and 500 women from various war services.

Next came Field Marshal Haig and his staff, leading 1,000 British troops of every branch of the service. All the dominions had forces in line, Canada being unable to supply a representative detachment owing to the demobilization of her forces.

Following the parade, London, which enjoyed a special business holiday, gave itself up to merry-making. Dancing was the most favored way of celebrating.

The authorities provided four huge arenas for dancing, old time country dances being features of the program.

Elsewhere in the city military bands gave concerts, and pageants and scenes from Shakespeare were given by theatrical clubs. A choir of 5,000 singers under the auspices of the League of Arts gave a feature entertainment, the singers being clad in picturesque Victorian costumes. Tonight the Imperial choir will appear in a peace and thanksgiving performance in Hyde Park. This organization number more than 10,000 singers. The public will be provided with the words of songs to be sung and will be asked to join in the patriotic numbers. Fireworks will end the day's festivities.

As a preliminary to the celebration, thanksgiving services were held in Westminster Abbey. St. Paul's cathedral and other churches on Wednesday. Copies of a special order of service were distributed to the schools of the city for use and a joint meeting of London schools, 20,000 children took part in the exercises.

Christ Episcopal Church Being Remodeled - Moose Home Going Up

SOME LARGER DEALS

Sanford Property on West North Sold for 70,000 to Wise and Killen

Near the downtown business district work on two large buildings is being done at the present time. Several weeks ago the old O'Day homestead at the corner of North and West streets was torn down, and in its place the new Moose home is being built, at an approximate cost of $100,000. Excavating on the basement has already been started, and the work is progressing rapidly. A small office has been built on the street for the transaction of business. It is probable that the home will not be ready for occupancy until the late fall or winter.

Just opposite the new Moose home, the Christ Episcopal church is undergoing extensive remodeling. The last services will be held in the church Sunday after which it will be closed for several months. The seating capacity which is now quite small will be enlarged at least three times by added floor space, as the north end of the church is being torn away, and a new wall will be built, extending along the sidewalk.

A new addition is to be built to the east also. It is expected that the improvements alone, not including decorating or fixtures will be in the neighborhood of $20,000. The altar and chancel, which at present is in the west end of the church, will be removed to the new addition in the east end, and the present dimensions of the church will be used for floor space exclusively.

It is estimated that the church will be opened for regular services the first of November. In the meantime services will be held in the parish house.

investment, and had no definite plans for improvement at the present.

Plans for the new motion picture theater that is to be built on the site of the present Empire moving picture theater on the northwest corner of the public square, are rapidly nearing completion in the hands of a Columbus architect, according to A. Ritzler, who with several other local business men recently leased the building from W. L. Russell.

The new picture house will cover the sites occupied by the Empire theater, Kable's restaurant, and several smaller shops in the rear. The entrance will be one of the most modern in this part of the state, and the interior will correspond. The theater will extend to the alley in the rear, about 200 feet. Bids for the work will be received as soon as specifications are completed.

Owing to a short delay in the work the removing of the South Side Building and Loan association from their present location at 208 South Main street to their new quarters on West High street, will not be made until the first of August, according to J. W. Gensel, secretary. It was hoped that the new quarters would be ready for occupancy July 20, but it will be about two weeks yet before everything is in complete readiness.

Remodeling of this first and second floors of the building is rapidly being completed. New fireproof vaults, and the best in office equipment is being installed. The entrance facing High street and the entire front of the building is of light gray stone, with large colonnades. The entire bank proper will be located on the first floor, while the second floor will be used for office and safety deposit vaults. The building has about a 50-foot frontage on High street.

The rooms where the loan is located on South Main street have already been leased to the Home Dairy company, a concern which runs a chain of stores in various mid-western states. This will be the first of the chain in Ohio.

ONE FAMILY TAKES PART IN 4 WARS FOR UNITED STATES

4 Generations From Peter Cook in 1848 Show Martial Spirit

In the four wars which this country has anticipated in the Cook family of Allen county has had representatives in each who represent four generations of that distinguished family. Few families in this or any other state, may boast of the same fact.

In the war with Mexico, away back in '48, Peter Cook, long since dead participated. He did not merely participate, but won honors on the field shortly following the battle of the Alamo. Cook, it is understood, was a personal friend of that famous personage, Davy Crockett, as well as of the inventor of the Bowie knife, Col. Bowie.

When the states south of the Mason-Dixon line started their fight for the lost cause, P. J. Cook, a son of the Mexican fighter, donned a uniform of blue, and enlisted on the side which fought to preserve that which our forefathers fought to gain in '76. This Cook went through the entire period of the Civil war.

Next, Uncle Sam called for volunteers in war with Spain, and H. W. Cook, a son of the Union soldier, heard that call and immediately went into service. This Cook now resides in Terre Haute, Ind.

J. L. Brown, a great-grandson of Peter Cook, a grandson of the participant of the Civil war, and a nephew of H. W. Cook, a little more than two years ago donned the khaki and offered his all on the battlefields of France in order that this world might be made a fit place to live in.

Young Brown was a member of the First Army Corps, and he makes the fourth generation of the Cook family to hear the call of the country of which it is a part. This youngster just recently returned from overseas, and now resides on Second street, this city.

Forest Fires in Northwest Are Still Spreading

SPOKANE, Wash., July 19.—Forest fires which have been burning for more than a week over an area of several hundred square miles in northern Idaho and western Montana continued to spread today, although three thousand men were fighting the flames. Hundreds of millions of feet of standing timber have been burned and at least three small towns in Montana were threatened with destruction.

A report early today stated that Gilt Edge, a hamlet east of Lewiston, Mont., was menaced by the flames. Another report said Alberton, 31 miles west of Missoula was safe for the time being, but not out of danger. St. Regis, also west of Missoula, was reported hemmed in by fire with communication shut off.

Get After Food Profiteers

RECENTLY A New York capitalist, president of the Bay State Fishing Company, was sentenced in Boston to serve one year in the Massachusetts house of correction and to pay a fine of $1,000 for conspiring to raise the price of fish and to establish a monopoly in fish on the Atlantic seaboard. Four other leading officers of the company received similar sentences.

Good work! Let us have more of this justice for those guilty of profiteering in foods. That is the best antidote in the world for bolshevism and discontent. Punish a few more profiteers and prices will go back to a normal level.

On all sides there is profiteering in foods. And some of it carries the suspicion that it is brought about by a conspiracy.

There is a great opportunity for public officials to win everlasting fame and gratitude from a suffering public by breaking up some of these unlawful combinations. When the same ridiculously high prices are charged for the same articles of food in various places it is time that we had an investigation and adequate punishment for those who are making excessive profits out of the necessities of life.

"I Remember When—"

TALK TO ANY one for five minutes, and he will use this expression: "I remember when—" and proceed to name the price of a certain commodity at a certain period. He remembers when you could buy a turkey for a dollar, or a chicken for a quarter or a dozen eggs for a dime. He remembers when a pair of shoes could be had for two dollars, or a bushel of wheat for sixty cents and the chances are he will actually repine for the good days gone when commodities were so cheap.

But the thing nearly every one overlooks is the fact that the dollar with which the turkey could be bought a quarter of a century ago was mighty hard to get hold of. When bacon was to be had at ten cents a pound there were soup houses in the cities, and bread lines, and beggars were more numerous than any other class of citizens. The cost of living is excessively high, no sane man would undertake to defend present prices, or to deny that many commodities are selling at too great prices. But the fact remains that there is less of hunger in the land today than there was when prices were at the very lowest point.

It is like it was with the fellow who used to boast that his father once had a chance to buy the present site of Chicago for a pair of boots. The whole tract of land was offered to him at that price. When asked why his father did not take advantage of the bargain offered, he said his father didn't have the boots. There are a lot of us who can remember that when a turkey could be bought for a dollar we didn't have the dollar.

An Excellent Plan

SELF-GOVERNMENT has been instituted at the N. C. R. playground and the first case to require serious attention has been decided in a manner that commends not only the system but the youngsters who are benefitting by the system, says the Dayton Herald. Two boys claimed the same bathing suit and a judicial inquiry, before whom witnesses were summoned, developed the fact that only one of the boys had a valid claim to the suit, which was awarded to him and the false claimant was barred from the playground for a certain period, the inquiry and the sentence being carried out by boys who frequent the grounds and recently were appointed its guardians.

Too much cannot be said in favor of a plan that gives the youngsters the benefits they are certain to derive from the experiment with self-government. As in the instance noted, the boys will mete out a brand of justice worthy of the finest court in the land, and they not only will instill admiration and respect for law and order but they will spread an active propaganda of respect for the rights of others, and for other's property. Self-government will breed self-reliance and pride and the experiment will lay the foundation for excellent citizenship in the future.

There's a Joker in it

IN THE STATE appropriation bill is an item for $30,000, to pay the expenses of a survey of state departments with the idea in view of combining various departments under a single head. This, if carried out, would be in the interests of good government but as usual there is an ethnoplant in the wood pile. The bill provides for the employment of actuaries to delve into the funds of the workmen's compensation law. The Federation of Labor and the manufacturers of the state see in this an attempt of the liability insurance companies to get their fingers into the compensation law funds and they are protesting vigorously against it.

Two of the best actuaries in the country have been employed for this purpose by the state. They were recommended by the Federation of Labor and the Manufacturers association. Their report will be trustworthy and accurate and made without prejudice. Actuaries owned by liability insurance companies and working in their interest, would make reports biased and so shaded as to this credit the law and its operation.

The dip into the compensation law operation is the real reason back of the survey. It is to serve a purpose so inimical to the public interest that it will be generally condemned.

HAPPY THOUGHT: A week's vacation.

You'll see many more Senators coming to time on the League of Nations pretty soon.

If Ireland ever does get a free republic we'll bet they won't adopt as a slogan, "Too proud to fight."

Henry Ford's testimony sounds like one of Will Roger's current comments in the Follies on public affairs.

They say that American coal is selling for $35 a ton in Switzerland, and it is no wonder that the Swiss didn't get in the war. They were too busy paying for coal to monkey with a little thing like a war.

GOOD EVENING—The purchasing power of money is getting so these days that pretty soon we will be calling 'em dollarations.

The Times' Family Doctor

MEASLES NOW WARDED OFF BY INOCULATIONS OF NEW SERUM

By DR. LEONARD KEENE HIRSHBERG
A. B., M. A., M. D. (John Hopkins University)

Measles can now be warded off by blood serum from those who are immune to it, if the new discovery of two physicians of Providence, R. I., is confirmed. The two investigators, Drs. D. L. Richardson and Hilary Connor find that experiments carried out and then applied to children saved them from measles.

Half a dozen children were exposed to measles after they had been protected from the disease by immune blood serum. Another child not thus protected and exposed at the same time fell ill with the measles. Eight others were made immune with the blood serum and brought partially in contact with those down with the disease. They did not develop the malady, because they were thus immunized.

Then doubly to prove their discovery, three other children received the virus of measles inoculation, and simultaneously were also given inoculations of the blood serum from immune persons. None of these was affected with measles.

While the experiments as evidence of discovery are too few to be conclusive to conservative careful minds, the average person would rush enthusiastically to their friends to prove "much more from less." However, the facts obtained are sufficiently important to warrant publicity of them in order to confirm or refute them by widespread investigation.

Earlier Experiments.

Perhaps the first attempts of this sort were made four years ago by Dr. Charles Herman of New York. The fact that breast-fed children under six months of age rarely fall victims to measles, suggested to him the inoculation of forty such babies. Not one had measles, and up to their second year, according to the last reports received, escaped this prevalent malady.

Another effort to produce resistance and immunity to measles was made by two French savants, Drs. Nicolle and Conzel. They employed the blood serum from a child convalescent just over measles. There were four children in that family. One child was given the serum, the other two were not. The latter fell ill with measles, the immunized one alone escaping.

Drs. Richardson and Connor obtained the blood out of which they made their anti-measles serum from children who were on the road to recovery from the ailment. This serum when inoculated into well children, protects them passively for a few weeks.

They also used another method to protect—vaccinate—them actively for a long time. It consists of the use of the serum and also the active disease stuff or virus of measles.

The First Steps.

The first method of course is easiest to apply and the most available in epidemics. The other method requires judgment, skill, discretion and great fortitude on the part of both doctor and patient.

The work was advised in the spring of 1918, when there was much measles in that city. It was a prevalent in Providence that in spite of exceptionally diligent and skillful physicians, cautious enough to learn whether children admitted for other diseases had been exposed to measles at home, mistakes would happen.

It is often almost impossible to recognize measles early enough to withdraw children who are well from those who are about to have measles.

It is, therefore, essential to have as soon as medical science can establish it, a method whereby measles can be headed off before it breaks out in the child.

This new discovery of the Providence physicians, if verified in general, will offer a means of serum inoculation which ought to safeguard children from this highly contagious malady if one of their number suddenly manifests its distressing symptoms.

A.—Gently massage with a sterilized piece of absorbent cotton or chamois, followed by the application of a little paste made up with the following will help:

Fulter's earth 1 dram
 Vinegar 2 drams
 Glycerine 3 drams

Apply the following on the pimples:

 Camphor ½ dram
 Green soap 1 dram
 Lanolin ½ ounce
 Vaseline ½ ounce

M. T. Q.—How can I reduce my hips and limbs?

A.—Swimming, bowling, bicycle riding, tennis and other exercises help in reducing the hips and limbs.

MISS V. V. Q.—Will you please tell me what causes white spots on the finger nails?

A.—Also give me a good spray for the throat and nose.

A.—Evidently your health is not perfect. It must be brought up to par. White spots on the nails is evidence of deficient vitality, somewhere. They come sometimes after an illness, because it takes several weeks to come into view.

1. Irrigate the nose and throat with alkaline antiseptic solution diluted three times in water.

P. J. H. Q.—What shall I do for insomnia?

A.—Insomnia has its foundation in loss of general health, worries, bad habits, need of ventilation and sunlight. Retire early at night, even if you cannot sleep. This restores the normal habit. Take a glassful of hot milk, a few crackers and a hot bath before you retire. A cold pillow and a hot foot bag helps. Take a triple effervescent bromide tablet or two in a glassful of water also before bedtime.

MISTAKEN IDENTITY.

The train was pulling into the station, and as the passengers crowded to get off, the hotel man walked up and down calling "King George, sir." King George? Coming up to an old gentleman from the country he said, while stooping for the man's bag, "King George, sir?"

"No, sir," replied the old man. "You're mistaken. I'm just plain Abraham McCarthy." —Harper's Magazine

Short Stories of the Buckeye State

WORTHINGTON ANTI-SLAVERY SOCIETY.

The descendants of Ansel Mattoon living at Worthington, where he was engaged for many years as a blacksmith, have preserved an old memorandum and account book kept by him in which is set forth the constitution of the Worthington Anti-Slavery society, bearing the date of March 28, 1836; 83 years ago last spring. The old document carries the statement that it was adopted at the home of W. S. Spencer. It was to be known as the Anti-Slavery Society of Worthington and to be an auxiliary of the state anti-slavery society.

Their object was ambitious—viz: "The emancipation of the colored people of the United States,—the emancipation of the slave from the oppression of public sentiment and unjust laws, and the elevation of both to an intellectual and moral equality with the whites."

"We shall seek to do this," the constitution proceeds, "by endeavoring to convince all our fellow-citizens by arguments addressed to the understanding and conscience that slaveholding is a heinous crime in the sight of God and that the duty, safety and best interests of all concerned require its immediate abandonment."

"This society will also endeavor in a constitutional way, to influence congress and our state legislature to relieve the colored people where they have the power of legislation." These names are signed to the constitution: W. S. Spencer, Israel Matterson, Isaac Magoon, Henry Stiles, L. Crittenden, C. Carter, John Douglass, Loson Moore, Oliver Richardson, John Smith, A. H. OUR BED-TIME STORY FOR TINY TIMES-DEMOCRAT FOLKS

Captain Brave untied the bundle of mail. And now for what it contained.

First of all there was a letter to Jack and Jane from father and mother back home in Make-Believe Town. Captain Brave opened it and read it to the little folks. It told how the big box of beautiful flowers that Dr. Cheer promised to send from Beautiful Island had arrived, and that the whole village had called at the little folks' home to see the assortment of wonderful flowers. They had given some of the flowers to all the sick folks in the village, had placed some in the church and and banked the money or had put the jewels themselves away for safe-keeping.

Jack and Jane had almost forgotten their part of the treasure, so interesting had been their journey, but now they remembered that Captain Brave had locked it securely in the airplane.

Dr. Cheer wrote, too. He told them how the flowers on Beautiful Island were blooming prettier than ever, and how lonesome he was for the children. He had been over to the native village several times and the little brown folks, who had entertained the children so royally, often asked about them and wished they could see Jack and Jane again. Dr. Cheer asked them to be sure and visit him again on their way home, as he was so anxious to see them. He inquired whether Booh had caught his foot in any more traps because of his inquisitiveness, and the children decided to tell him in their next letter what had happened to Booh since they had left Beautiful Island.

There was another letter from mother to Ladydear. Of course she wanted to know if the children were behaving, and doing exactly what Ladydear and Captain Brave told them to.

Ladydear made the children very happy when she said, "I can just tell mother that I didn't know two children could be so good."

Of course it takes a long time for letters to go back and forth across the ocean, and so mother and father hadn't heard yet about the more recent adventures of the children.

By the time all these letters had been read, Jack's curiosity got the better of him, and he said, "What do you suppose that big letter is?"

Captain Brave purposely had saved this letter for the last, because he knew that the children would be all excited when they knew what it was.

So now he picked up the large letter with the gold seal on it, pulled the letter from the envelope and read it to the little folks.

Now see if you can figure out who wrote the letter and what it was about before I tell you tomorrow.

The Adirondacks

There's magic in the word "Adirondacks." It's the spirit of our pioneer ancestors calling us back to Nature. It's the urge of the trails through the woods, by the lakes, over the hills. It's the dip of the paddle, the song of the reed, the scent of the pine. It's forgetfulness of work and worry; it's sport and fun. It's freedom.

Of course, you're going to take a vacation this summer! Go to the Adirondacks, this beautiful territory of the Indians is truly a playground paradise—natural, unspoiled, refreshing. Other attractive resorts are:

Saratoga Springs, Lake George, Lake Champlain, The Thousand Islands, Niagara Falls.

Any number of camps, fine resort hotels, or boarding houses, and accommodations to fit every purse. All kinds of sports, fine golf and tennis. Your vacation days in this section will make you keen and fit for the work to come.

The United States Railroad Administration invites you to travel, and offers Summer Excursion fares. Ask your local ticket agent to help you plan your trip or apply to nearest Consolidated Ticket Office, or write the nearest Travel Bureau, stating booklet desired.

TALES OF CRUEL TREATMENT TOLD BY U. S. SOLDIERS

Probe Committee Hears Officers in Charge of Prison Camps Scored

WASHINGTON, June 19.—Arrogant American officers mercilessly assaulted American troops in France without provocation while they were in charge of prisons and camps, according to the testimony of six former American soldiers, before a special house committee investigating alleged cruelties to military prisoners.

One of the witnesses was convicted of being absent without leave but the other five were acquitted of the same charge and dismissed. Lieutenant "Hard-boiled" Smith, convicted by court-martial, one of the prison camp officers, was mentioned frequently, while others named were Lieutenants Mason and Sullivan and Sergeants Ball, Wolfmeyer and Bush.

Saw Fifty Beaten
Paul Boggs of Baldwin, N. Y., 218th field signal battalion, declared that he saw at least 50 men beaten and that the men were glad to eat dirty potato peelings.

Corporal Charles Goldberg, 320 Central Park West, New York, asserted he was knocked down by an officer when he refused to surrender his money belt.

Alvin Bates, Brooklyn, who was with the headquarters troops, Second Army, declared that medical inspection at "the farm" was a farce.

Charges "Bungling"
Colonel F. L. Hulsekoper, formerly adjutant of the 33rd Illinois division, asserted that "bungling" by officers increased American casualties. He claimed Colonel Cowan of general headquarters told him January 6 that because of the poor transportation system, the American army could not have kept up a month longer and would have had to stop had not the Germans stopped. He said the American officers were conceited and cock-sure and did not profit by the experience of the British, French and Germans, and added that "General Pershing did not select the ablest staff officers."

be granted. Mr. Bonillas, who has just returned from a month's stay at Mexico City, reported on the progress being made to pacify Mexico.

Do You Want Perfect, Pearly Teeth

If you do the saliva must be alkaline. Nature intended it so in order to help digest your food. THE FAUROT'S PICTURES

There is a girliness about Vivian Martin, a continuous suggestion of the feminine that is there whether she is wearing skirts or not. And most of the time in "Little Comrade" which is receiving its first showing at the Faurot today, Vivian is not.

She begins the picture as a frivolous young debutante with nothing on her mind but a notion about the newest dancing steps. We first see her feet, for they alone are pictured in the first insert, tripping the light fantastic toe in and out and round about. But a great purpose comes into her mind when mother and sister reproach her for lack of interest in the nation's necessary war work. She sees an advertisement and starts off to become a farmerette.

Going to the Hubbard farm, she proves a lemon when it comes to milking cows, tossing hay with the rest of the girls (a healthy looking lot, by the way), or collecting eggs. There is good comedy all through this picture, and a well developed love interest, for Genevieve falls for Farmer Hubbard's younger son.

When he is sent away to officer's training school, her heart goes with him; when he sneaks back, "A. W. O. L.," which being translated means absent without leave, a serious offense—she knows her true metal and helps to make of a spoiled boy a regular worthwhile guy.

D.W. GRIFFITH'S
"The Girl Who Stayed at Home"

AT THE FAUROT SUNDAY AND MONDAY

This final stuff lends just the necessary touch of seriousness to this pleasing picture. The photography could not be improved upon.

Burton Holmes Travel Pictures and other added features complete the highly enjoyable program. Last times tonight.

David Wark Griffith is recognized wherever motion pictures are shown as one of the foremost producers of great cinema spectacles. In his field, he is a power second to none, and all of his productions bear the ineradicable stamp of superiority. There is a massiveness about his pictures, a certain grandeur of treatment, and a general effect of completeness which place them in a class by themselves. Mr. Griffith won his spurs with his famous production of "The Birth of a Nation," and this was followed in quick succession by other now equally celebrated masterpieces, many of which have been produced under Artercraft auspices. These include "The Great Love," "The Greatest Thing in Life," "The Romance of Happy Valley," and now comes his latest photoplay, "The Girl Who Stayed at Home," which will be seen at the Faurot next Sunday and Monday. The theme of Mr. Griffith's newest picture is an attractive one, and handled as it is with exceptional skill and rare judgment, it is more than likely to duplicate, if it does not exceed, the success of its brilliant predecessors.

The most gorgeous sets that have ever been used in a society motion picture play were used in Elsie Ferguson's new Artercraft picture, "The Marriage Price" which will be shown at the Faurot next Tuesday and Wednesday. The drawing room is a replica of Frank Gould's drawing room on that millionaire's Lakewood estate. The furniture was made especially for the set and the paintings, tapestries, rugs, and bric-a-brac is worth a small fortune.

The bedroom set is done in orchid colored enamel with a narrow line of insert green wood. The wall lights are covered with shades of orchid silk and the bed set, dresser fittings and rugs contrast strikingly with the color scheme. Several interior decorators visited with Famous Player Lasky studios to look at the sets which they had heard were the most beautiful pieces of artistic work that have yet been shown in the studios. Copies of rooms in the Plaza and St. Regis Hotels of New York are shown perfectly in this picture.

Another remarkable set is the racing stable, copied from Frank Gould's stable at Lakewood. Real marble floors were laid in the studio, instead of the painted cloths which used to satisfy the public taste. The stalls were made of mahogany with marble columns. Carved walls and stained glass windows complete the elaborate set.

Miss Ferguson plays the part of a society woman in "The Marriage Price," who becomes impoverished and seeks to make her own living with more or less success. There is a pretty love story and the situations are quite dramatic. Wyndham Standing is the leading man.

This strong feature will be augmented by the addition of the latest edition of the Pathe News and "Fatty" Arbuckle's new comedy, "A Desert Hero." It is one of the most attractive programs the Faurot has yet offered.

Charles Ray, the Thomas H. Ince-

Paramount star, appears in a decidedly new type of character in his new photoplay "Greased Lightning" which will be presented at the Faurot next Thursday and Friday.

We have seen Mr. Ray in past performances as the baseball player, the hired man, the young city sport, the spoiled mother's boy and the like, but no type of the past gives him such opportunity for his subtle comedy as does the small town inventor, a character he portrays with admirable taste in "Greased Lightning."

The play derives its name from a racing automobile, the product of the young inventor's genius, which fails to work until the crucial moment in the story. Then it becomes the speed demon that runs down the villain.

Mr. Ray is surrounded by a capable cast, including Wanda Hawley, Robert McKim, Willis Marks and others.

COMMENTS ON THIS PICTURE:
WID SAYS:

GIVEN the magic of a combination of a super director, a super star and a super story, a super photodrama is a foregone conclusion. This is demonstrated in Lucille Lee Stewart's newest medium for screen expression, "The Eleventh Commandment," a powerful photoplay written and directed by Ralph Ince. This picture is generally voted one of the big hits of the present screen year.

COMMENTS ON THIS PICTURE:
NEW YORK REVIEW:

"THE Eleventh Commandment" is a heart-throb. It is of the type of play that irresistibly appeals to women even, to a greater degree than to men. Suffice that it is thrilling effective. It may be recorded without any suggestion of undue susceptibility on the part of this reviewer that Miss Stewart in the role of the wife gives a portrayal brilliant for fine emotional and tender power.

COMPETITOR'S METHODS UNFAIR, SAYS INLAND WATERWAYS HEAD

Unfair fighting is charged by President Albert Krell, of the Central Inland Waterways Association, with offices in the Union Trust Building in Cincinnati, against two of the four competitors in Ohio for the proposed barge canal from the Ohio River to Lake Erie.

Under a recent act of Congress a corps of United States engineers, with Colonel Lansing H. Beach in charge, is making preliminary surveys to ascertain which route should be selected. Meantime, promoters of two of these routes secured their surveys and now are claiming everything in advance for their respective zones, it is declared.

President Krell has made the following statement:

"Representative Campbell, of Pittsburgh, introduced in Congress on June 28 a general bill appropriating $500,000,000 for barge canals and river improvements throughout the country. In this general bill there is a lurking provision for $55,000,000 to be used in five annual installments of $11,000,000 each for a barge canal, from Pittsburgh, through the Beaver and Mahoning Valleys, to Lake Erie.

"If that bill is passed it would put the routes from Marietta to Cleveland, from Portsmouth to Sandusky and from Cincinnati to Toledo, with its branch from Defiance to Chicago, out of the running. As the people in the Pittsburgh district have been persistently working for a barge canal from the Ohio River to Lake Erie for years, such a knockout blow to their Western competitors is, no doubt, the object of the bill.

"The Central Inland Waterways Association is asking its friends this week to write to the members of Congress to have the Pittsburgh section stricken out of the bill or else have it defeated.

"But this attempted swindle judgment on the part of the Western Reserve and Western Pennsylvania is no worse than the camouflage of a thirty-two-page pamphlet that has been issued by 'The Great Lakes and Ohio River Waterways Association,' with headquarters at Columbus, for the promotion of what is called the 'Central Railway' from Portsmouth to Sandusky Bay. The College of Engineering of the Ohio State University has been enlisted with the Columbus Chamber of Commerce in a preliminary survey with the most extravagant boasting for the Central route, which claims the 'largest' of everything on the earth and in the earth and then some.

"Ohio State University has heretofore been considered a state institution, at least theoretically, but in practice it seems to be a Columbus institution. Prof. C. E. Sherman has not only written pamphlets in favor of the Central route, but he has also been putting in 'state time' with other professors from the Ohio State University in addressing commercial bodies throughout the state in favor of the route from Portsmouth through Columbus to Sandusky Bay. Ohio State University was not only established at great expense to taxpayers in all of the 88 counties, but it is also maintained by an annual tax throughout the state every year. The justice of such a discrimination to the people along the other three routes is certainly unpardonable.

"While such unfair means are being employed against Cincinnati up the river and up the state and all along the Miami and Maumee Valleys up to Toledo, the Central Inland Waterways Association has just received word that its route, designed at Columbus as No. 4, has been endorsed by the Mississippi Valley Association with headquarters at St. Louis. This is known as the greatest inland waterways organization in the world. A similar endorsement was made some time ago by the Ohio Valley Improvement Association.

"Advocates of a nine-foot stage from Pittsburgh to Cairo have been a horrid unit for years and years, but they are now 'evidently' engaged in deadly conflict. The commercial bodies at Wheeling, Steubenville and other cities on the upper Ohio are working with all their might for what they called Route No. 1, from Pittsburgh to the lakes. The commercial bodies in the section next to the Pittsburgh belt along the river are favoring the route from Marietta through the Muskingum, Tuscarawas and Cuyahoga Valleys to Cleveland. Other commercial up-streams organizations seem to be favoring the so-called Central route, from Portsmouth through Columbus to Sandusky Bay.

"The conditions down the river are in favor of the route from Cincinnati to Toledo, and that includes the entire Mississippi Valley as well as the majority of the population and of the shipping on a tonnage basis of the Ohio River.

"So far what are known as the Pittsburgh and the Central routes have been much more successful in raising funds for the promotion of their respective routes than the one from Cincinnati to Toledo, and it is evident that financial as well as moral support must be given the Central Inland Waterways Association or it really will be an 'also ran'.

HAWAII IS REAL PART OF AMERICA

People in States Have Mistaken Idea About Island Territory

HONOLULU, T. H.—Letters received here by public officials indicate that in many sections of the United States there exists a surprising ignorance as to the real status of Hawaii.

As a territory Hawaii is an integral part of the United States and its political status is exactly the same as that of Alaska and of Oklahoma before the latter was granted statehood. Governor C. J. McCarthy frequently receives letters addressed to "The American consul, Honolulu."

One large mainland paper recently speculated as to the possibility of Hawaii seeking "self determination," apparently not knowing that Hawaii is intensely American, despite its cosmopolitan population, and that its people are extremely proud of the fact that the territory has "gone over the top" in every Liberty loan campaign and war charity drive.

A pupil in a public school in a Nebraska town, evidently at the instigation of his teacher, recently wrote a letter for delivery to "some scholar of Hawaii," describing the game of baseball, his home, and relating the fact that he had his meat cooked before eating it, and asking for a description of simple, native life in the Paradise of the Pacific.

Scores of similar stories might be told, all emphasizing the fact that many Americans have little knowledge of this American territory, two thousand miles out in the tropical Pacific.

It is apparent that a misleading conception of Hawaii has been drawn by many popular songs and light literature.

Honolulu, with a white population of approximately 25,000, has more than 5,000 automobiles, excellent street car service, electric lights, automobile telephones, country clubs, golf links and all the other social refinements.

While it is true that many dusky beauties take daily dips at Waikiki beach, they wear made-in-America bathing suits instead of grass skirts, dance the fox trot instead of the hula, and spend their spare hours playing golf at the country clubs or driving their cars over the scenic roads of Oahu instead of strumming ukuleles beneath palm trees for the entertainment of white beachcombers and tourists.

Hawaii is in the tropics and 2,000 miles from San Francisco but is a very American part of the United States and the movement known here could be interpreted as a desire for "self-determination" is an occasional suggestion that statehood should be sought.

IT WAS HIS BUSINESS.

A lawyer trying a case before a jury in the superior court of Massachusetts, stood up to cross-examine a witness whose testimony was very damaging to his side.

"On the night in question," he began, addressing the witness, "did you not have several drinks of whiskey?"

"That's my business," answered the witness.

"I know it's your business," quickly responded the lawyer, "but were you attending to it?"—Osteopathic Magazine.

SHE HAD IT RIGHT, TOO.
One day the Germans circulated the rumor in Strasbourg that they had taken 100,000 prisoners. A dialogue on the subject took place between two market women in Klebert square.

"But where will they put all these prisoners?"
"Oh, that's easy," replied the other, a true daughter of the soil. "They will put them in the newspapers."—Victory (Franco-American Corporation, New York.)

AT THE LYRIC
Madge Kennedy, the irresistible artist, comes to the Lyric theatre Sunday and Monday in her latest Goldwyn Picture, "Day Dreams," by Cosmo Hamilton. Her thousands of local admirers are promised the pleasure of seeing her in situations different from any in which she has been enmeshed in previous Madge Kennedy successes.

She is Primrose, who dwells in a fairyland she has built for herself. Men of wealth, who seek her hand in marriage, are repulsed while she dreams of the white knight, who is coming to make her his princess and sail with her to his castle across the sea. But George Graham is determined to win her and schemes to shatter her dream of fairyland. He succeeds in disillusioning her but at a tremendous cost to himself. Dan O'Hara, whom Graham induces to pose as Primrose's white knight, plays his part well, but too well to suit Graham, for, when the disillusionment comes, Primrose takes Dan to her heart.

Humorous incidents pile up while the plot to wake her from her dream progresses—situations that show the delightful Goldwyn comedienne in her funniest moments.

The United Commercial Travelers have had a successful week and the committee deserves a great deal of credit for the splendid work they have accomplished. Among the more active workers on the entertaining committee are: Sam Roeder, E. W. Hawisher, Dave Allgire, Joe Riley, Ed. Wingate, Henry Tilton, William Herring, William Howell and Jesse and Marvin Barth.

MONEY LOANER FINED
When arraigned in police court yesterday afternoon shortly after 4 o'clock, Edgar Meffley, 22, clerk at the Buckeye Pipe Line offices, pleaded guilty to charging exorbitant rates for money loaned to fellow workers. He was given a fine of $50, and this was suspended on condition that he return the interest charge. He agreed.

I. W. W. MAGAZINES FOR "RED TERROR"

NEW YORK, July 19.—Open advocacy of "the red terror," the destruction of the American government and the forcible seizure of power by the workers was contained in magazines printed in Russian and Finnish by the I. W. W., which were offered in testimony at a session of the joint legislative committee which is investigating radical and seditious activities in this state. Some of the magazines were published in New York and others in Chicago.

Extracts from the magazines which were read by translators included such sentences as:

"The Bourgeoisie can be paralyzed only by the red terror."
"Burn the codes of law; take all the riches; death to the Bourgeoisie."
"One of the most effective weapons is sabotage; let us attack with the ferocity of tigers."

Among a number of letters which were read into the testimony, addressed to the I. W. W. headquarters here, was one from a woman teacher in a private school for literature suitable for boys of high school age. The letter was dated Salina, Kansas and was signed Grace Ganar. Plank. The writer recommended that nothing be sent "so venomous as to antagonize at the outset."

IT WAS EMBARRASSING.
The policemen were going out on duty and X 0239 was trying to explain what had become of his whistle. "You see, sir, it was this way," he said. "When I got 'ome last night, I placed that there whistle on the table, and presently, when I turns around, blest if one of my kids wasn't chokin' an' en' nearly black in the face. You see, sir, 'ed swallowed the whistle."

The inspector had a sympathetic heart behind his blue tunic. "Is the poor little one dead?" he asked, gently.
"No, no, sir!" was the reply. "E ain't exactly dead. You see, sir, little Bill, 'e's—'e's got the whoopin' cough, an' every time 'e cofs the whistle goes, an' a policeman comes to the door."

SCOTCH THIRST AGAIN.

The minister's class at the Kirk of Tebermory had been reading the story of Joseph and his brethren, and it came to the turn of the minister to examine the boys. The replies to all his questions had been quick, intelligent and correct. Such as:

"What great crime did the sons of Jacob commit?"
"They sold their brother Joseph."

"Quite correct. And for how much?"

"Twenty pieces of silver."

"And what added to the cruelty and wickedness of these bad brothers?"

A pause.

"What made their treachery even more detestable and heinous?"

Then a bright little Highlander stretched out an eager hand.

"Well, my man?"

"Please sir, they sell't him over cheap."—Pittsburg Chronicle-Telegraph.

THOUGHT IT WAS A MULE.

It was Pat's first football match. Dashing here, there and everywhere, running in everybody's way, and continually being pulled up for offside. Pat, while in the midst of a scrimmage, received a nasty kick on the head, rendering him unconscious.

"Wh—who kicked me?" spluttered poor Pat, on coming round.

"It's all right," replied the referee. "It was a foul."

"A foul, he jabbers!" cried the astonished Pat. "I thought it was a mule."—Pittsburg Chronicle-Telegraph.

MORE TRUTHFUL THAN OTHERS

During the convention of the Veiled Prophets of the Enchanted Realm in Pittsburgh recently, banners proclaiming a welcome to the visiting hosts were conspicuously displayed throughout the city by merchants and citizens.

A foreign-born fruit dealer, whose efforts to master the English tongue were attended with more or less difficulty, not wishing to be outdone by his neighbors, proudly displayed a sign in his store, "Welcome Profits."

Before some kind-hearted soul pointed out to him the error in his orthography many patrons smiled in an amused way as they paid the high prices for his wares and wondered if there wasn't more truth than he had intended in the placard.—Exchange.

NEEDS OF SERBIA KNOW NO LIMIT

Starvation is Not All That Faces Desperate Inhabitants

NEW YORK—A country in want of practically everything necessary for the preservation and maintenance of human and animal life; a country whose man power is so depleted that, even if the implements and materials for these needs should be supplied would not be equal to the task of properly employing them, and this country both the center and circumference of the forces of unrest, which have kept the world afire since the era of Alexander and which must simmer down before a lasting world peace can be had.

This is the description with a message in it for the American people which Col. Homer Folke, former commissioner of charities of the state of New York has brought home from Serbia after he traveled the length and breadth of the Balkan states, making an exhaustive survey of conditions for the American Red Cross.

"If I were to try," said Col. Folke, "to enumerate the things that Serbia needs and to give an adequate description of her economic condition, I would have to begin at the top and follow down the list of all nouns of sustenance and adjectives of suffering. There is nothing, outside of the actual soil of her country, and even that must be fertilized—which Serbia does not lack.

"She is a nation paralyzed—except as to spirit. And that will go, too, before long, if her needs are not met, for the forces of bolshevism, whose greatest ally is hunger, are close to her border, waiting for the moment to swoop down on her and insert its poisoned beak in the core of the world's unrest which Serbia, for a reason as yet unsolved by historians, has always been, still is and will always be until her problem is properly solved."

A proper portrayal of her condition is most adequately given in a few concise statements by Col. Folke in which he tells of Serbia as she was when he left her. He emphasizes:

"In Serbia not a bank was doing business; no schools were open for the children; there were practically no doctors or hospitals for the sick; the stores had practically nothing to sell, except food supplies locally produced; no factories were in operation; practically no fuel was to be had; no labor was available, the entire manpower of the country being mobilized in the army, and the army being in what was Austria-Hungary there was no means of transportation, no horses, no mules, no automobiles, no gasoline, no trucks and but few oxen."

According to British scientists there is nothing in the way of laboratory, optical or surgical glassware or porcelain formerly the product of other nations that is not now being made in Great Britain.

PRETTY LUNCHEON.

Two of the most delightful hostesses of the week were Mrs. Robert Horn, and Mrs. Lloyd Applis, who on Thursday invited a number of guests to luncheon at the Elk's Club. It was an elaborate affair, one of those which is so much appreciated since the war, because of the long period of social inactivity. The two hostesses presided charmingly and the guests enjoyed themselves immensely. It was a lavender and pink party, the color scheme being carried out in the decorations of the table and private dining room. Following the luncheon which was a daintily appointed one, bridge was the diversion of the afternoon.

The guest list included, Mrs. Geo. Glover, Mrs. Ralph Austin, Mrs. Ruth Kerr Hyter, Mrs. Frank Scalls, Mrs. Allan Brady, Mrs. Julius Solomon, Mrs. Gale Dunifon, Mrs. J. Lawrence Stonebraker, Mrs. Roy Gregg, Mrs. William Daniels, Mrs. B. S. Barber, Mrs. Harry Workman, Mrs. Alfred Wemmer, Mrs. Miller Landick, Mrs. C. A. Black, Mrs. Charles Killian, Mrs. William C. The rooms of the home were very attractive with their bowls of garden flowers, tied with pink tulle. Mrs. Emma Taschantz Cornelius held high score and was presented with a handsome gift at the conclusion of the games and during the serving of the delicious tea.

A Chance to Live

(By Zoe Beckley)

LIFE GROWS BRIGHTER

She was tired but the day ended at 5:30, which seemed to Annie the middle of the afternoon. Aunt Margaret went home with her for supper and to carry some odds and ends of her belongings to her new, cheap furnished room.

"Well, dearie, how did it go?" "Oh, wonderful, Aunt Moggie! I'll be friends with that terrible telephone in no time. And the book-keeper's promised to let me address envelopes on the typewriter tomorrow. Soon I'll be making out bills," he said so. And then—stenography!"

After supper they practiced with the stenography. Aunt Margaret drilled Annie in the chemical terms used at the office and dictated some imaginary letters. It was slow, of course but she was surprised how well Annie did it. All things considered.

"She'll get on," Margaret told Mrs. Margaret later. "she's twice as bright as I was at her age. In a year she'll be earning as much as she cost at the factory—maybe more."

"I hope so," said Annie's mother; "eight dollars is terrible little to get along on, with things getting higher all the time. We're an awful burden

Betty Fairfax's Ready Advice

Chats with the Love-lorn—

—Answers to Missives—

Dear Miss Fairfax: I am to be married in August and would like some advice. There will be no guests—just the family—and a luncheon will be served directly afterward. Since we will leave immediately after the luncheon, will it be proper to wear a blue serge suit? Must I wear or carry my gloves? Do I take off my hat and jacket after the ceremony, after going to the table? It is necessary that the bridegroom wear a dark suit? Where are the proper places for the bride and groom, parents and minister?

GLADYS M. H.

Ans.—For an informal wedding, a blue serge suit is appropriate. But since your wedding is to be in August, when it is so hot, I think a dark silk dress would be more comfortable. In either case, it is best to wear a hat and gloves and, if the occasion is very informal, remove your hat and jacket for the luncheon. The bridegroom should wear an inconspicuous business suit. The bride and bridegroom should sit at the head of the table, the mother of the bride at the foot, with the bridegroom's father and the clergyman at her right and left hand respectively. The other guests may sit any place.

Dear Miss Fairfax: (1) A mother has died leaving no will and the deeds are made out in this way—Sarah Jones and her heirs. Her husband married again and a few years later died also. Can the second wife claim any of the property?

Ans.—When the mother died without leaving a will, her husband could claim a third of her estate, according to the laws of Ohio. Likewise when the husband died, his second wife could claim a third of his estate. (2) If one of the sons of the first wife dies without a will, can his wife come in for her share? There are no children.

ANS.—Your questions were rather obscurely worded, but I think I have gotten your meaning. In Ohio the law reads that if there are no children or descendants, the widow takes all. So the widow of the son would get his share of his mother's estate.

Dear Miss Fairfax: Could you give me any information regarding the Motor Transport Corps, 609?

ANS.—Write to the adjutant general, Washington, D. C.

Dear Miss Fairfax: Can you tell me of something that will kill fleas? I have found them in my cellar.

MRS. G. H.

Ans.—Spray the parts of the house infested with the fleas with a mixture of ten parts of oil of mirbane, 80 parts of coal oil, 5 parts of oil of mustard and 5 parts of pine tar. This mixture to be most effective should be well atomized by the sprayer.

Dear Miss Fairfax: I am a girl 19, and would like to have your advice on several questions. I have known a boy of my own age for two years, seeing him quite regularly. He is a perfect gentleman and we have always been the best of friends. Two weeks ago I noticed that he seemed to be peevish about something, the cause of which I do not know. July 4 we were at the same celebration and although he watched me very closely and spoke to me, he made no effort to talk. I would like to know

Let Electricity do your work

MEN! The best way to "keep your home fires burning" in the summertime is to put them out. Keep the Wife contented and healthy, keep the home comfortable and cheerful the electric way—the modern way—the economical and efficient way.

Why ask the wife or the "help" to sap their vitality over hot stoves, boilers and irons when an electric iron, washing machine, toaster or percolator will do the work quicker, cheaper, better and more comfortably.

Why impose drudgery when a practical vacuum cleaner will promote ease and cleanliness? Why not give the entire family the benefit of cool rooms and restful slumber by installing an electric fan?

There's no good reason why you shouldn't. Your electrical dealer can supply these necessities.

TODAY—"The Master of Ballantrae," by Robert Louis Stevenson.
MONDAY—"The Two Admirals," by James Fenimore Cooper.

STEVENSON

Robert Louis Stevenson called himself an idler. He was a natural vagabond who loved to go in old clothes upon his own way through the strange city haunts of the disinherited or out upon the open road. He despised smug society, but talked eagerly with all sorts of men and women. Yet even as a boy he always carried a notebook and a pencil and constantly put into words what he saw and thought and felt. He wrote until his health gave way, again and again, and then he wrote of that.

Between 1873 and 1879 he produced many of the most inspiring essays of the "Virginibus Puerisque" series. The magazines published "A Lodging for the Night," "Will o' the Mill," the fantastic "New Arabian Nights," and other stories.

In 1879, he made the journey to California in steerage and emigrant-train, determined to "learn for himself the pinch of life as it is felt by the unprivileged and poor." The hardships injured his health, but did not deter him from making the first draft of "The Amateur Emigrant." He recuperated on a goat ranch near Monterey and managed to teach some neglected children. In Monterey afterward he planned his romantic comedy, "Prince Otto." He completed the breakdown of his health by living on starvation rations in a workman's lodging in San Francisco and working feverishly. After a dangerous illness, he married and lived in the mining camp of "The Silverado Squatters."

Thus did Stevenson the idler dig his material and his power out of life itself.

THE MASTER OF BALLANTRAE

By ROBERT LOUIS STEVENSON
(Condensation by James B. Connolly)

The Duries of Ballantrae were a strong family in Scotland from the days of David I. Their ups and downs I pass over, to come to that year 1743 when the foundation of this tragedy were laid.

There was my lord, studious, tactful and retired from the world. There was The Master (James) in baptism with his father's love of study; but what was tact in the father changed to black dissimulation in him. Though ever in broils, invariably he left his partners in mischief to pay the piper. The second son, Mr. Henry, was neither able nor bad, an out-of-doors, solid sort, who had had an active hand from a boy in the management of the castle. In the house also was Miss Alison Graeme, an orphan, comely and self-willed, heiress to a fortune and, because of my lord's necessities, pledged in marriage to The Master.

Then came the uprising for Prince Charlie. Against the wishes of the other three The Master elected to ride with the Prince; which left Mr. Henry to take King George's side, this being a common policy of great houses in that day. So The Master rode to the North. Then came the word of Culloden and The Master's death. After a decent time Mr. Henry to preserve the estate, married Miss Alison, although he no more than any other doubted her love for The Master's memory.

But The Master was not dead. He had escaped to sea, his escape being not to his credit. At sea he was captured by a pirate ship. By the most ingenious dexterity he secured the treasure of the pirate ship as she was about to fall into the hands of a King's cruiser, and escaped with it to the swamps on the American shore. One man he took to guide him out of the swamp, and diked him to death after they were safely clear of it. Thence he continued his march to French Canada, although forced on the way to hide his treasure in the wilderness. This we learned from a Colonel Burke, an Irish soldier of fortune, who came in the night to plead money for the support of The Master, who was then in France.

There was a letter from The Master which threw Mr. Henry in a passion. "He calls me a niggardly dog," he cried. "But if I ruin the estate I shall stuff him, the blood-sucker! And all this I foresaw when he elected himself and not me to go with Prince Charlie."

The gap made in our accounts by The Master's demands became a sore embarrassment. As steward of the estate I must needs ride to Edinburgh and there raise new loans on hard terms to keep old ones afloat; and this held for seven years, Mr. Henry shaving everything to the last farthing to raise more money, and yet more money; winning for himself thereby no better title than Miser with the countryside as well as at home; for never a word of this business did he even tell to the old lord or Mrs. Henry, it being the devilish malice of The Master to require this secrecy and the loyal nature of his brother to comply.

The odium attaching to Mr. Henry and the knowledge, which came to me, that The Master all this time had also a pension from the Scotch fund in Paris, became too great a burden for me. I took it on myself to tell Mrs. Henry how her husband had already sent 7000 to The Master. Thereafter no further monies were sent abroad, and the telling did much to check a widening restraint between Mr. Henry and my lady, a great joy to me.

This action resulted in The Master's return to us, a great cause to the household; for in all matters of contention, though Mr. Henry might be right, The Master had the trick of setting him in the wrong. He still demanded money, and to satisfy him, the entail was broken and a great piece of land sold; and all the while he ceased not to lay siege to it on so deftly that I scarce knew if she was aware of it herself, she that I doubt not still loved him. This brings me to the night when he laid the most unbearable of insults on Mr. Henry. "I never knew a woman," said The Master, "who did not prefer me, nor—I think—who did not continue to prefer me to you." At which Mr. Henry coldly struck him on the mouth.

"A blow!" cried The Master. "I will not take a blow from God Almighty! I must have blood for this!" They fought beyond the shrubbery, I bringing the candles for them. From the first Mr. Henry showed himself the stronger, which so surprised and confused The Master that he tried foul play, but got only the length of Mr. Henry's sword through the body. He fell, apparently lifeless.

Mr. Henry shook with sobs. I led him into the house, and told the old lord and my lady; but going back to bring in the body, I found it gone. A good riddance, I thought, whether dead or alive, but the night's work threw Mr. Henry into a fever, and his mind was never again the same clear mind as of old. The old lord died, and to my lady and Mr. Henry, now my lord, was born a boy, and to that boy my lord became a slave, which had not been so with his first child, Katherine. He would pass by his wife as though she were a dog before the hearth to come at the boy. Without doubt this was in the nature of a judgment on my lady she who had been so cold to many years to every mark of his tenderness; but to me it was monstrous, and I was emboldened much as I loved him, to say so; but my saying so only served to send my lord sick to bed and to earn for me from my lady the word that I was no better than an old maid.

This brings me to that morning in April, 1764, that The Master returned to us again, this time with an Indian servant. With his return my lord and lady, I urging them on, took ship for New York, where my lady had property through her father. This voyage, so I thought, will at one stroke rid them of The Master and weave them closer together.

Twenty days it took The Master to learn where they had gone; whereupon he also sailed for New York, and I on the same ship, praying that she would go down, even with myself with her, if it would but take The Master also. I looked forward with woe to the day he should set foot in New York; but our ship was a slow sailer, and other ships which sailed later arrived before us; so it happened that my lord had word of The Master's coming and prepared for him. There was suspicion of more than one murder, it seems, to The Master's hand during the earlier stay he made in America, and so now he found it a better business to leave New York and hunt in the wilderness for that treasure which he had buried so many years before.

At this time all the evil The Master had done seemed borne in a flood upon my lord's brain. He became moody and took to drink. There has been talk that he conspired with the crew which The Master had hired for his expedition into the wilderness, bribing the leaders to make war with his brother. There is no evidence of that, but it is true that The Master's Indian servant to save his life, as he said, did bury him alive, with the intent to resurrect and restore him later by the agency of some secret Oriental trick.

My lord and a party, I being of it, followed The Master, and it was when the East Indian was lifting his body from the grave that we came upon them. I thought for a moment that the eyelids fluttered. Others say that the lips strove to speak, that his teeth showed through his beard, which may have been, as I was busy elsewhere, for at the first disclosure of the dead man's eyes, my lord had fallen to the ground. When I raised him he was a corpse.

I buried him there; my lady laid an equal stone to each; and there where they died, side by side, they lie to this day.

LIQUOR HOARDERS MAY BE TAXED IN ENFORCEMENT BILL

Senate Committee Plans Striking at Men Who Have Filled Cellars

WASHINGTON, July 19.—The senate prohibition enforcement bill will be reported to the full judiciary committee probably on Monday, Senator Sterling of South Dakota, chairman of the sub-committee drafting the measure, stated today.

"I believe the bill will go through the senate easily and with little opposition," Senator Sterling said. He admitted he was not hopeful, however, for final action until after the peace treaty has been disposed of.

The senate sub-committee today was giving particular attention to the clauses in the bill which makes it permissible for liquors to be kept in private dwellings for private use. Members of the committee hoped to reach some plan which would strike at the man who has stored away large quantities of liquor for his own use, maintaining that this is an evasion of the spirit of the law and is unfair to those who were not able to lay in a supply.

WANTS TO TAX HOARDERS. Senator Walsh of Montana strongly favors a provision in the bill which would make these stores taxable and would require the owners to report the amount of liquor which they have. Senator Sterling has indicated that in his opinion it will be a difficult problem to deal with private liquor hoarders and believes the most effectual way will be to allow the supplies to be maintained so long as they do not come in violation with the law.

Appeal of the Anti-Saloon league for more facilities for securing search warrants was not expected to meet with favorable results from the senate committee. Senator Sterling and Senator Walsh reiterated today that they believed that the proceedings for securing search warrants which are now in force are adequate. The Anti-Saloon league's request that the punishment for securing search warrants for "malicious and unprovable" causes be lessened also, has not met with favor by members of the committee.

DELAY NAMING AGENT. Lack of quorum prevented selection of a new county farm agent at a called meeting of the Allen County Farm bureau held last night at Memorial Hall. R. F. Harbaugh, Sullivan, Ind., was the only candidate to present his claims to the bureau. He is a graduate of the agricultural college of Purdue University and at present is agricultural adviser for the Mitchell Lumber Co., in Indiana. Another meeting will be called in the near future to select an agent.

Keeping Tab on Good Things For The Kiddies

Children's Home Youngsters Not Smothered With Playthings Nor Expensive as Playground Wards. Big Big Circus in Prospect for the Chautauqua Kiddies.

In the financial report of officials managing the county of Allen, which was published on June 25, showing the schedules of receipts and expenditures for various causes during the year, are some interesting items having to do with child welfare.

Because of the excitement in city official circles during the week in which so much trouble seems stored up for somebody through a paucity of attention to certain details of living, and quite as much if not more, for those who devoted an excess of attention to such things, figures are scanned as never before. How many noted in this report the figures relating to Allen county's institution for the waifs—the Children's Home—for such things as education and recreation, drugs and medicines, etc.?

The item for education and recreation for instance, since we are discussing in the city the vital necessity of playgrounds, apparatus, etc., and since it has become such a paramount matter among big thinkers in educational circles. This item says that $10.29 was expended in Allen County's Children's Home during the year indicated, for "education and recreation." Drugs and medicines for the same period cost $74.68. The concluding item in the list marked "other expenses" is given as $6,518.22.

Salaries of employees is recorded as $2,700.82. Some big items here, and one wonders if some of that "other expenses of $6,518.22" could not in some way be diverted toward a scheme of "recreation and education"—two such important features in the care of children.

Boys and girls of the different playground centers, Fairport and Lincoln parks, Garfield, Horace Mann and Whittier schools, are all agog over the big plans brewing for their first local field meet, which Superintendent Isenbarger is arranging for next Friday afternoon at Fairport park.

And you young chaps want to look pretty spruce too, on that afternoon, for that popular local camera man, Mr. Starrett, who loves the young folks himself, is going to be on hands with his apparatus, and there will be several pictures "took." There will be ten or twelve events in the schedule which Mr. Isenbarger is getting together and the boy and the girl who wins most "firsts" will get the blue ribbon, indicating first prize, and a red one will go to each in the second class.

Then there is likely to be a baseball game, too, between rival teams of the two centers qualifying with the best material in the interval between now and next Friday. The young folks and their parents with well-filled baskets are expected to show up about 2 o'clock. There will be a variety of entertainment in the interval, and at 4 o'clock the contestants in the field meet will be called up for the fray. Most all the new apparatus ordered by Superintendent Isenbarger has arrived and is in place. Sometimes there have been 150 at the Fairport playgrounds, and the average daily attendance is something like 75 to 100.

At Whittier, on the south side, the attendance has been the best ever noted there.

Miss Nikel and the rural nurse in the employ of Allen County Child Welfare association has been working at Beaver Dam the past week. She will visit all the towns and villages, first, awaiting the opening of the school term to care for the children in the rural districts, when she can get them together at the school house. In the meantime she is visiting the homes of those in the former and getting acquainted with the parents. She believes this is going to result in a deal of good; as parents for the most part welcome her and take very kindly to her suggestions for treatment where defects are indicated.

Children of the city and county are looking forward to the coming of Chautauqua season, August 22-28, for the biggest time of their young lives. For there is going to be a real circus this year; yes, a real, genuine sawdust ring full of all those things that delight not only the childish heart but those of their elders as well. The notices say there will be lions, giraffes, ostriches, goats, monkeys, elephants, and all sorts of animals. This year the pageant is to be called "Democracy Triumphant" to celebrate the winning of the war by the brave soldier boys.

The Junior Chautauqua will be on every morning except Sunday, beginning at 9:00 a. m.

On the day before the regular opening there will be a free meeting of children between 6 and 14 and the first day will be "American Day" and the fourth day "Pet Day," fifth day, "Junior Town Day," sixth, "Circus Day," and the seventh and last will be "Pageant Day."

The circus will doubtless be very popular with the Lima young folks; and they will be watching with immense interest for the Junior Chautauqua leader who comes in advance to get them lined up for the big events.

PLANS PREPARED FOR PIONEER MEET

Arrangements are nearing completion for the great annual event of the County on Thursday, August 14th, 1919 when the Elida Pioneer Society will hold its 25th annual meeting in the Crites grove one mile east of Elida.

It is remarkable the hold this annual meeting has on both old and young.

It may be that those people who attend the meetings do so simply for the pleasure derived, but to a student of faces gathered in front of the speakers stand, the conviction comes clearly and strongly, that such is not the only motive.

Beneath the outward show of pleasure runs pure and strong the desire, not to simply perpetuate the memories of the pioneer fathers and mothers but to venerate them and their noble deeds.

Here lies the charm of these meetings and this is why the great gathering is present year after year.

In this love of the fathers and mothers, and wide in their achievements, risks safely the foundations of all society and government. The day's program is always helpful to the thousands who attend, the society never failing to have speakers of renown and good music.

You will not regret it if you take a well filled basket to the grove and enjoy this day with your friends.

After Hall's Injury I Am Made Flight Commander and Meissner and I Are Given the Croix de Guerre made the mistake of trying to out-maneuver me instead of just following.

I believe I should have followed the first target all the way to the ground regardless of the consequences so I perplexed had I determined to get it.
So I perhaps prolonged my "error" speed a trifle too long. As the engine of the aeroplane fell off and began to roll, I pulled my stick back, took the controls and began a sharp climb. The "aeroplane" of the Neputuri group announced itself. A roaring crash sounded like the crash of doom to ears told me that the sudden had collapsed my right wing. The left spread of canvas over the wing was torn off by the wind and appeared behind me. Deprived of supporting surface on this side. Newport turned over on her right side. The fall was forced up despite all the efforts that I, in such rapid succession, at first, next faster and faster, began revolving around the ground. Swiftly and with her own downward speed I was caught in a circle of tail spin and with a thine as or applied as mine there seemed no chance to come out of it.

What a Tail Spin Feels Like

When I would I strike I wonder there were the woods of Montserrat. How the heavens' how much near the ground was setting. I wonder if the whole framework of the machine would break and find me out there. I was in time out there was bare but that I might escape with a set of broken bones. Both Jimmy, Meyer and Jimmy still had escaped despite what happened through this same fall of the Niagara. Never could I escape again if I got out of this fly again. I began to wonder about the speed of my fall. No increase in speed was around the circle I felt a regular turn - the shock of the air pushing me down the left wing after passing through the right. I felt a growl around at those magnificent brown

But although I had been experiencing to some extent with rudder, I now found I was too ill-natured to move in the slightest the stubborn spiral of the seraphine. Fully ten thousand feet I had fallen in this manner; so my wing had collapsed. I looked overboard. I was scarcely 3000 feet from the crash! I could see a faint glint on the water in front of me. The water still was not visible to me. They were all at a fault over the excitement they would get from my machine—from my body itself.

What a vicious disregard for comfort as I pulled over the throttle—sudden as a trap—opened from the neck of the machine was too much for me. I was perpendicular all the time. I had reached up the tail was quite horizontal. A flash I seized the postscript. I remembered my rudder. The pull of the propeller kept her straight. If only I could keep her so for five minutes, I might make the lines. They seemed beckon to me only ten miles or so from the land above and below.

Not so! I was in the sky. My enemies evidently were sure I was done for. Below me I saw the last of the ship—half behind me, was my big head was rushing faster than lightning. Sudden elevation be-

I crept over the meadow. I boldly tried him to make me use the same word. She would not let him but she would not let me either.
I live the lines I slid a good thing and fear up. Once freed from anger of finding in Germany. I tried several small tricks and succeeded persuading the damaged craft to do more effort. I saw the roofs of hinges before me. With the meadow and the wide open grassed tops of the old Albatros and I pulled flatly upon my field.

I had passed through rather a vicious experience as I looked back upon it now. Yet I do not recall that I anything unusual had happened still over the edge of my cockpit required for Reed Chambers. This was the record results of flying wartime. A special fatalism possesses a pilot to such an extent he learns to take everything as a matter of course. Rarely does a pilot trav much excitement over the danger, no matter how extraordinary it is.

I had hardly been heard from. Full few minutes later he blew in. But some cock-and-bull story running away from him, in violation of our agreement. He had been believed in Germany also, and in coming he had met the two Albatros machin-

who were then returning home to the aerodromes, possibly to get a motor car and hurry down to view my remains. Reed had not seen my comb and did not notice me flying in the plain bird homeward. But his report of seeing only two Albatross confirmed my expectations that the third had actually gone down to a final crash.

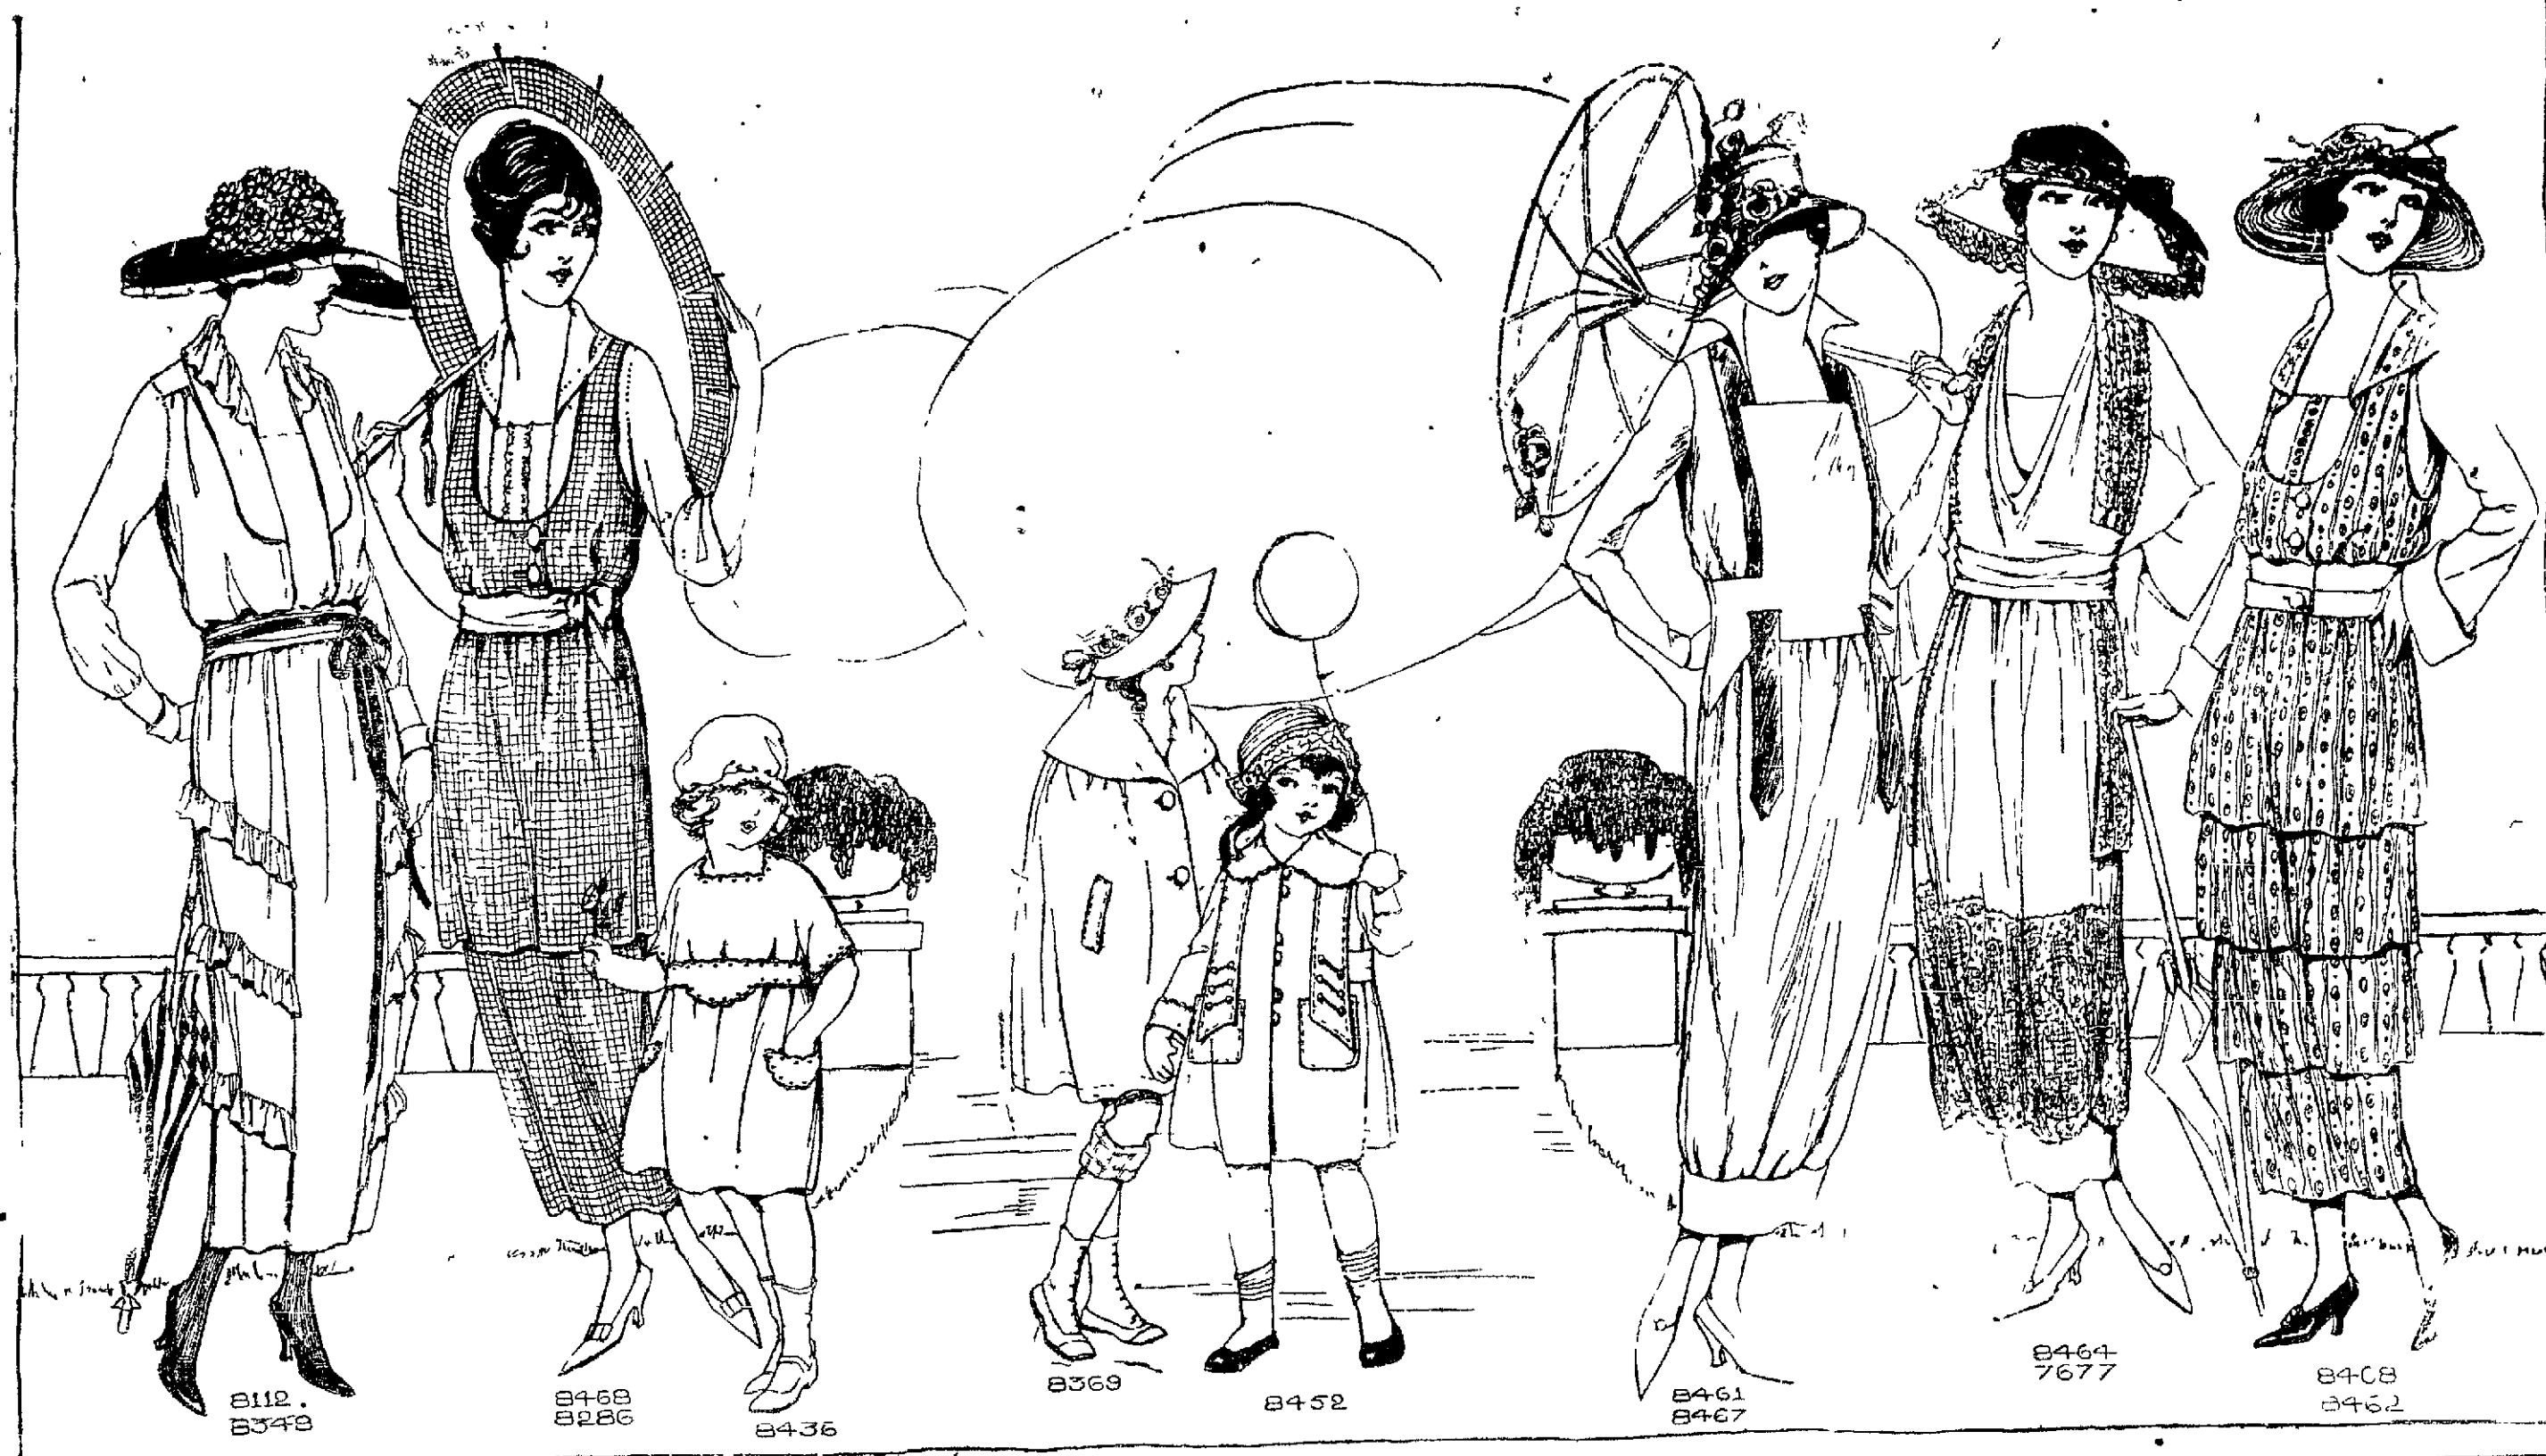

Early next day the French notified us that they had indeed seen the Albatross machine crash and had noticed my crippled Nieuport staggering homeward from the fight, surrounded by Archers. They thus confirmed my victory without any request on my part. And the extraordinary part of the whole affair was that the dead German pilot—my latest victim—had so faithfully up his controls that the machine flew toward France and landed with his dead body a few hundred yards inside the French lines.

THINKING OF THE SUMMER VACATION IN TERMS OF CHARMING CLOTHES

Captivating Creations for Matrons and Maids Unusually Attractive in Detail—Organdy Frocks with Garnitures of Soft Filet Lace Distinguished of Line—Despite Its Popularity There Are Times When the Girdle Is Not Employed—Tendency of all Smart Designs Is to Indicate the Waistline. However—No Wardrobe Complete without a Soft White Crepe de Chine—Fashions for Summer Activities of Kiddies.

THE MAUDE HALL
HE frocks for midsummer interpret a charming witchery of style. They are distinguished of line and attractive in detail. King cotton has not been dethroned, but he finds that there is growing sentiment in favor of popular rule because there is an inclination to arbitrate the matter of prices. Some of the expensive fabrics which were out of the question for the average dress allowance earlier in the season are now obtainable at reasonable cost and they are being used to the best advantage possible.

No one questions the supremacy of cotton voile. It is the table talk of the fashionable world. The newest patterns are a little more definite in design than those offered at the beginning of spring. Stripes and dots are combined, also small figures and checks. A particularly smart costume in blue voile with stripes and dots forming the pattern has a skirt built up in flounces—there are four—and a skeleton blouse worn over a guimpe of ecru batiste. The overblouse is untrimmed, except for two large buttons of batiste, where it fastens a little to the left. The girdle and collar also are of batiste.

Skeleton blouses, or guimpe waists, as they are also called, are not only attractive, but they are practical, for by changing the guimpe, one often changes the appearance of the frock and gives variety to the wardrobe. Another model in check gingham has the skirt made with a deep straight tunic. The waist has a deep open front and large armholes showing an underblouse of crisp white organdy. Hemstitching trims the collar and cuffs of the guimpe.

No wardrobe is complete this season without a soft white silk crepe de chine frock. As a rule these dresses are fashioned upon the simplest of lines and self-trimmed, except for the girdle. There is wide latitude in the matter of waist trimmings of all kinds this season. One particularly pretty white crepe has the skirt trimmed with three ruffles of self material, put on diagonally. The front of the skirt is in panel effect and the waist has a straight vest of self material. The deep collar and cuffs are of crepe de chine and there is a frill of georgette about the neck, although this is purely optional with the wearer.

Despite the attention paid to the girdle, there are times when it is omitted, though the tendency is always to indicate the waistline. A handsome organdy with garnitures of deep filet lace expresses the idea in mind. The skirt has a straight tunic edged with a deep edging of filet. The waist closes at the back and has an inset vest of self material, with

Join skirt gores as notched. Leave left side seam free above lower large "O" perforation in front gore and finish for a placket. Gather between "T" perforations. Adjust skirt stitching upper edge over upper row of gathers in waist with center-fronts and center-backs even; bring side seam to under-arm seam. Draw gathers from center-front to left side edge in to the required size and finish for closing.

Join tunic sections as notched. Leave side seam free above lower large "O" perforation in front section and finish for closing. Gather between "T" perforations. Adjust stitching upper edge over top of skirt with center-fronts, center-backs and side seams even; bring small "o" perforations at upper front and back edges to side edges of applied front and back.

Back in square outline. The applied front is draped softly and thrown over the shoulders is a scarf of lace whose ends pass under the waist and hang at either side of the skirt. The applied back closes at the left shoulder and is gathered and stitched to the lower edge of the blouse.

SPLENDID DESIGN FOR FARM HOME

Five-Room Bungalow That Has Strong Appeal
MAKES THE HOUSEWORK EASY

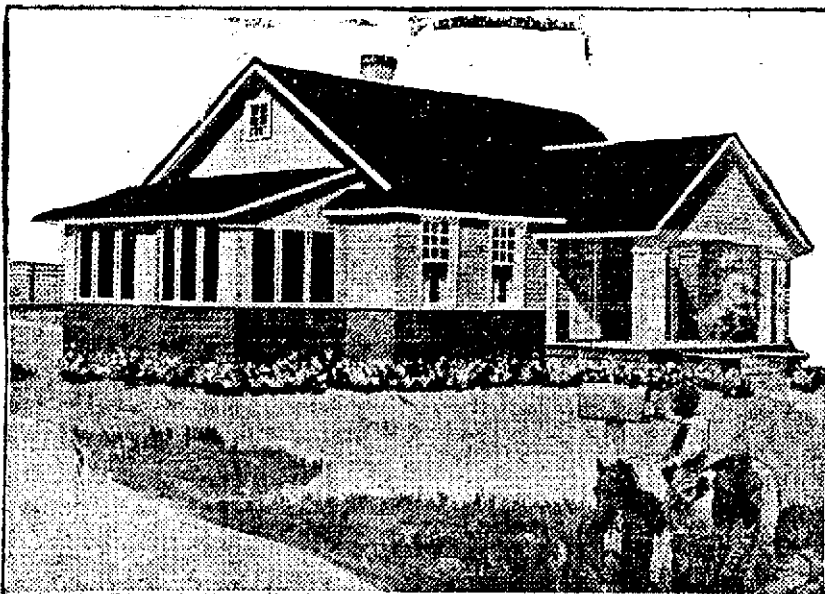

Will Accommodate Good-Class Family and is Most Conveniently Arranged—Sleeping Porch Attractive Feature.

Mr. William A. Radford will answer questions and give advice FREE OF CHARGE on all subjects pertaining to the subject of building work on the farm. For the readers of this paper. On account of his wide experience as Editor, Author and Manufacturer, he is, without doubt, the highest authority on all these subjects. Address all inquiries to William A. Radford, No. 127 Prairie Avenue, Chicago, Ill., and only inclose two-cent stamp for reply.

There is no little difference in the homes designed for farms from those that are erected in cities. The comforts and conveniences that are found in town are embodied in the homes that are being erected on the farm, with the additional features that the work of the rural housewife requires.

To promote home building and to provide plans for houses that can be erected at a minimum cost, the United States department of agriculture recently designed a number of farm homes. All of these houses were small, but were planned so that the family would have a modern home.

The accompanying design follows out this idea. Here is a five-room house that will accommodate a good-sized family. It really is a four-room square house, with the kitchen added at the back and a sleeping porch put on the side where the bedrooms are located. A screened porch adjoining the kitchen also is a feature.

The dimensions of the main part of the house are 36 by 28 feet, while the kitchen and porch projection is 20 feet 6 inches by 18 feet. As will be seen by the accompanying illustration this home has an attractive exterior. The gables in the roof of the porch and the house, the method of applying the siding and the sleeping porch projection, all combine to make this an excellent design.

Four rooms, living and dining rooms and two bedrooms are contained in the main portion of the house. The floor plan shows how they are arranged. The living room is large, 17 feet 6 inches by 12 feet, and is connected with the dining room by double doors. The dining room is practically square, being 18 feet 6 inches by 14 feet 6 inches. A 4-foot passageway runs alongside the dining room and opening off it are two bedrooms and the bathroom. The front bedroom is 12 by 14 feet 6 inches, and the rear bedroom is 11 by 14 feet 6 inches.

One of the exceptional features of this design is the sleeping porch, which is connected with both the bedrooms. The dimensions of the porch are 9 feet 6 inches by 18 feet 6 inches, large enough to accommodate two full-sized beds. It may be partitioned if desired.

The kitchen is arranged to accommodate the needs of the farm. Adjoining it is a pantry on one side and a cooking room on the other, while the large screened porch that opens off it provides a comfortable and pleasant place for the many duties that can be performed out of doors in the summer. A second entrance leads from the porch to the passageway, so that all the rooms in the house may be reached without going through the kitchen.

The bathroom is so located that there is little expense required to connect it with the water system from outside, and from the kitchen range where the water is heated. Running water now is found on most farms, and for this reason the design has been made so that it can be carried into the house at little additional cost.

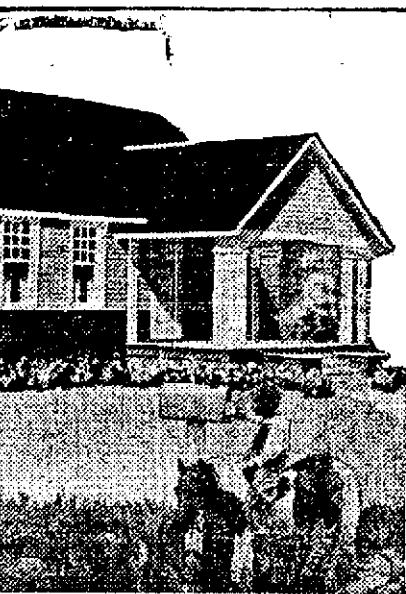

What will appeal to the housewife in this design is the convenient arrangement of the rooms all on the one floor. There is no running up and down stairs required in doing the work, neither are there any unnecessary steps to be taken in getting from one room to another.

The cost of this house easily can be ascertained by consulting the local contractors and material dealer. Material and labor costs vary in different localities, but no matter where the farmer lives he will find that this house is comparatively inexpensive to build, while, at the same time, it will make a comfortable, convenient and attractive home.

Much has been written and more has been said about the advantages of building modern homes on the farms. When a farm home is to be built, however, there is no good reason why it should not embody the features that make for comfort and ease in doing the work required to keep it up. When these advantages are put into a design for a farm home, it would seem foolish to build anything else.

Building a home is something that most farmers do only once in a lifetime. Before building, therefore, it is wise to make a careful study of home designs. Consideration should be given to the size and number of rooms required; but greater thought should be expended on making the room arrangement compact and labor-saving. In this way the new home will be satisfactory to everyone who is going to live in it.

Now is an excellent time to build. Prices of both material and labor will not be less for a number of years to come, if in this generation. Just so long as foodstuffs cost as much as they do now, labor, which is more than 80 per cent of the cost of building, will require living wages. Those wages will come down only when the price of food is reduced, a condition that no producer wants to see.

And He Spoke.
A county superintendent visited a consolidated school the other day. On his entrance the children began to cheer. The teacher was puzzled, especially as the cheering continued, and called on one of the children for an explanation. "We want him to make a speech," he told her.

"Pleased she turned to the superintendent. "What a compliment," she fluttered.

The superintendent grinned. "Perhaps not," he said. "You see it hasn't been so long since I was a boy that I can't remember how we'd rather listen to the driest kind of a speech rather than recite a hard lesson."

The teacher was embarrassed. And not the least bit relieving was the next speech of the school head. One of the boys said, "Oh, we weren't going to recite. The teacher was going to read to us."

"Well, I've been there, too," laughed that portly man. "So I'll go on and speak, anyway."

No Sense in Playing Martyr.
Affecting the abused mortal won't keep you from paying the addler. Some folks are always being made to bear the burden of things—so they would have you believe. The fact is so many people can't do a really big day's work and they throw in lots of bluff to make up for the shortage. But the more bluff they use the more they call attention to what they are. Air is unstable and the hotter it is the more it starts things. So beware of playing the martyr. There's nothing in it and the sooner you give it up the better. Face the music like a man. Be master of the situation instead of a whiner.

Parcel Post to Siam.
The Siamese director general of posts and telegraphs has officially notified the American consulate at Bangkok, relates the New York Times, that parcel post service between Siam and the United States via "Hongkong-Pacific" came into operation as from October 10, 1918. The rate from Siam to the United States is 25 stangs (about 35 cents gold) for parcels up to one pound in weight, and 40 stangs (18 cents gold) for each additional pound, each parcel being limited to 11 pounds in weight.

BOXING

SOLDIERS PLAY HERE TOMORROW

Team From Camp Perry
Will Perform Against
"Our Boys"

Tomorrow afternoon a gang of soldiers from Camp Perry, will shed their khaki uniforms for a pair of hours and don a baseball uniform.
In an effort to wipe up the local aggregation at the old Murphy street ball yard. This soldier team is said to have more ammunition than their brothers had on the western front.

In the line-up for the Camp Perry team are the names of some of the classiest players in the army, and you know that's goin' some, for there is a large field to pick from.

The gang which will arrive here this afternoon, late, and pastime tomorrow has been traveling at a fast clip this year, and have suffered only a few defeats. They come here, with the expectations of getting measurement of the local bunch, and are all well "heeled" to do it.

The local aggregation, on the other hand, is determined to add their soldiers' scalps to the collection, and they will put forth every ounce of effort toward that end. It is probable the same line-up as last week will be used tomorrow.

Whether or not Wessels will work in tomorrow's contest is not known, as it has been announced by the management an effort is being made to secure another arbiter.

BILLY WEEKS WILL FIGHT
KAYO BROWN HERE, JULY 28

Arrangements Just Completed Whereby Two of the Classiest Battlers Will Meet Here Monday
Week.

What promises to be the best boxing exhibition ever staged in Lima will take place Monday, July 28, when Billy Weeks, of Springfield, will meet George (K. O.) Brown, of Toledo. Just where the bout will be held is not definitely known, but officials of the Lima Athletic Club, are endeavoring to prevail upon county commissioners for the use of Memorial Hall. The bout will go ten rounds.

Both these men are fighters of rare ability. Both are able to give an take more punishment than any gladiator who has been seen in action here. The last meet held by the L. A. C. last month staged Brown and O'Leary as the principals in the main go. It was on sided affair, as

Brown and O'Leary on the defensive the entire 12 rounds.

Brown is a battler who entered the ring with the intention of bringing home the bacon, and he continues in that fashion during the entire contest. Weeks is a popular fighter in this city. This Springfield lad has met and defeated some of the best men in the ring. He is an offensive fighter, and carries a kick in his dukes, like the aftermath of a mule.

Two big men, Bud Fisher, 180 pounds, and Hope Mullin, 158, of Muncie, Ind., will fight for eight rounds. This Mullin person is an exact replica of Bob Fitzsimmons, except Mullin hasn't the freckles made popular by the late Bob.

Kid St. Elmo of this city will endeavor to put the quietus on Young Jack White, in a six round contest.

CHAMPION DEMPSEY
TAKES YEAR'S REST

CHICAGO, July 19.—Jack Dempsey and his manager, Jack Kearns, left Chicago for Los Angeles.
Dempsey said he would defend his title on this side and would not go to Europe under any consideration.
Dempsey will not fight for at least a year, as there is none in sight at this time worthy of a bout with his man, Kearns said.

The champion will return to Chicago in about two weeks and make his headquarters here, he said.

Winning Team To Receive Trophy

In an effort to make the games of the Industrial more interesting, H.
H. Starrett, sporting goods dealer, of this city, has offered a handsome trophy to the team winning the pennant. This trophy will each year go to the winning team, and the aggregation which wins it three consecutive years will gain it permanently, it was stated.

Three good games are scheduled for this afternoon, and it is anticipated the contests will be more thrilling today than ever before. Garfords and the Ohio Steel foundry will tie up on the College grounds, while Chalmers and East Iron Works will cross bats at the City Park.
Delsel-Wemmer will endeavor to whip the Gramm aggregation at Murphy street ball yard.

TED LEWIS TO GET
CRACK AT BRITTON

Former Title Holder Will Meet the Champion Sometime the Latter Part of this month.

NEW YORK, July 19.—Final arrangements have been made for the eight-round bout between Jack Britton, welterweight champion, and Ted (Kid) Lewis, from whom Britton took the title in their bout at Canton, March 17. The boxers will clash in Jersey City, July 28.

The weight will be 145 pounds at 7:00 o'clock.

Britton knocked out Lewis in their Canton bout in nine rounds. The English boxer was sick at the time, as subsequent events would seem to indicate, for Lewis has only recovered from an illness which forced him to bed soon after his defeat by Britton.

Coffrey. Monahan has been boxing for some time with Joe Jeanette and has learned a great deal from the col-

Offer To Dempsey
Made By a Woman

LOS ANGELES, Cal., July 19.—
Mrs. "Snowy" Baker, wife of the Australian sport promoter, called yesterday on Jack Dempsey, world's champion heavyweight boxer, and Jack Kearns, his manager, and offered Dempsey $100,000 to stage his next fight at Sydney, Australia.

The offer was contained in a cablegram from Baker.
Kearns told Mrs. Baker he could not give a definite answer at this time, as he had a similar offer from Paris, and was waiting for developments in that matter.

French and English Champs
May Fight For First Chance

Georges Carpentier, and in circle Joe Beckett.
English, sporting men thing Joe Beckett, recognized heavyweight champion of their country, has a good chance to beat Jack Dempsey.
Whether he or Georges Carpentier, the French champion, who before the war was going to the top fast, has the better right to try for Dempsey's world title, will be proven when these two men meet at the National Sporting club in London. Fight critics fear that Carpentier's long absence from the ring will give Beckett a big advantage.

LEW TENDLER STILL PURSUES
BENNY LEONARD FOR A BATTLE

Philadelphian's Success Over Joe Welling Recently.
Strengthens The Claims of Quaker For Match
With Champion

It is not likely that Benny Leonard, somewhat surprised when they met him in Toledo. Every one of them declared Benny was a true enough lightweight and could, if he wanted, go below the 130 pound notch.

Leonard has never been forced to try out for a bout in his life. That will be to his advantage any time he has to scale a very low weight. He is at his best at 135 pounds, and if he does meet Tendler that will probably be the weight he will name for a championship bout. Besides that he will demand a good sized bet.

In making the 135 pounds Leonard is quite right in his argument that 135 pounds is the right mark.
Since the time of Jack McAuliffe, who was the first champion of the class under Queensberry rules, the weight has been virtually 135 pounds.
Jack used to agree to 133 pounds, which was really 135 pounds.

In only a couple of instances was the weight reduced to 133 pounds by the title holder, by Nelson and Wol-last, who were both very light men and who were at an advantage at the lower scale.

INDIANS RELEASE
PITCHER LAMBERT

Hurler is Turned Over to Columbus Club After Failure to Show Form

CLEVELAND, July 19.—Pitcher Otis Lamoeth of the Indians has been released to the Columbus club of the American association. Lamoeth, who has been with Cleveland since July, 1916, was in France nearly all of last year and but recently returned from overseas.

His late arrival found the Indians equipped with a surplus of pitchers and rather than keep him on the bench it was decided to let him go to Joe Tinker's team.

Cliff Blackenship, former Washington catcher, has disposed of his business interests in Oakland, Calif., and moved to Spokane, Wash., where he has purchased a bowling alley.

He was directed to a colored man who had one for sale.

"Do you want to sell a mule?"
asked McJones.

"Yaas, sah," replied the owner.

"May I ask what you live sah?"
"What has that got to do with it?"
queried McJones.

"Well," explained the negro, "I ain't gwine ter transfer dat mule to nobody dat lives less dan 200 miles away from here. When I sell dat mule I wants to get rid not only of the mule but of all conversation an-partainin' to him."—Harper's Mag-

JAMES HART, PIONEER OF
THE NATIONAL GAME DIES
AT HIS CHICAGO HOME

James A. Hart did much to elevate base ball to its present standard. He was regarded as one of the best informed baseball men in the country. Many rules now deemed indispensable, were championed by Hart. The foul strike rule, one of the most important, was the final effort in rule making. He was largely responsible for the abolition of foul bound defining the coaches' box changing the pitchers' box and substituting the slab, altering the shape of the home plate, requiring the catcher to play close up to the plate all the time, abolishing the tong tip and covering of the players' bench.

He was actively engaged in baseball for twenty-five years, retiring as president of the Chicago Nationals in 1905 when Charles W. Murphy took over the club. He was closely identified with National league for 16 years, entering the league in 1889, just prior to the brotherhood fight in 1890. From 1891 to the time he retired—almost 15 years—he was president of the Cubs, having succeeded A. G. Spalding, who resigned.

Hart was born in Girard, Pa.,
July 10, 1855, and at the age of 15 years was secretary of his home club. After leaving school he devoted 13 years in mercantile pursuits, owning stores in Pennsylvania, California, Illinois and Kentucky.

He first connected with professional baseball in Louisville, Ky. The old Eclipse team, before the days of the Association, attracted him.
The team played Sunday ball with such clubs as it could find as opponents—Comiskey's Browns of St.

Louis, the Philadelphia Athletics and similar organizations. When the American Association was organized in 1882, he became vice-president and a member of the board of directors of the Louisville club, which succeeded the Eclipse team. He practically ran the club, the work requiring so much of his time that he quit thenceforward business.

In the winter of 1886-1887, he sold his interests in the Louisville club and purchased the controlling interest in the Milwaukee club, then in the old Western league. He was president and manager through 18-87-1888, and in the winter of 1888-1889, became American manager of the "Chicago" and the "All-Americans," the first baseball teams organized for a tour of the world. He handled the business affairs of the clubs on their way from New York to San Francisco, in the meantime disposing of his Milwaukee interests.

He returned to Chicago, and while Spalding was on the world tour with the two teams, Hart received offers of managerial positions from several clubs, including Boston and Washington to the National League. He accepted the Boston offer and became manager in 1889. The following spring he went to England and Scotland to introduce baseball in those countries. When he returned he devoted most of his time to pacifying
the factions in the Brotherhood war, acting as "go-between" for the players and the National League. He was secretary of the Chicago club at that time and at its annual meeting in April, 1891, he was elected president.

THROUGH THE SPORTSCOPE

"We need new players," said
"Gavvy" Crath on taking charge of the hopeless Phillies. "We need strengthening."

And so he trades Pitchers Jacobs and Woodward, who have won twelve of the Phillies' twenty scattered victories, with Doug Baird, a so-so infielder for Gene Paulette, an aged and light-hitting first baseman, and Lee Meadows, whose weakness is an inability to finish any game he starts.

Well, that may be one way of "strengthening the team."

So long as Roger Peckinpaugh was pummeling the pill the Yanks were winning. The moment the veteran shortstop and captain stopped plunking the apple the Yanks stopped like Willard in one round. Begins to look pretty much as if Roger were the Yanks, doesn't it?

Everywhere among major league fans, except in New York, the Cincinnati Reds are favorite in the National league pennant race. The fans are pulling for Pat Moran to equal his record of 1915, when he gave Philadelphia its first pennant in the old league. If he succeeds in giving Cincinnati its first gonfalon, he will just about be the most prominent baseball man in the country.

And, it might be said, he deserves just this distinction, for it will never go to his head.

George Chaney took his first knockout from Johnny Kilbane on September 4, 1916, at Cedar Point, Ohio. He took what should be his last at Philadelphia, July 15, 1919, from Joe Tiptitz, of New York. Chaney is done as a ring contender.

RUMOR TWO COUNCIL MEMBERS WILLING TO RESIGN DUTIES

But Will Not Until Gas Matter is Entirely Been Cleared Up

PETITIONS ARE OUT

Placed in Stores Saturday and Average 10 Names Each in First Hour

In less than two hours after petitions, asking for the resignations of the seven councilmen who signed the "scrap of paper," which was presented to the Ohio State Utilities Commission, recently, had been placed in business in this city, they averaged ten signatures to the petition.

Prominent Citizens. It is estimated by those interested in the affair that each petition will number, at least, 100 names before the stores close this evening. Particular note was taken of the signers, and it revealed that practically every person who put his name on the petitions is a prominent citizen of Lima.

Two May Resign. Just what effect these petitions will have upon the councilmen is not known, however. Of the seven councilmen, two, it is understood, said they are willing to resign, but not until the gas matter is thoroughly cleared up.

Meet Monday Night. It is anticipated a large number of citizens will be present at the regular session of council Monday evening, to witness any action that may take place.

Three Held For Bucyrus Police

Upon instructions from police authorities of Bucyrus, Ohio, Alfred Stumpf, 31; Rose Hall, 34, and Mario Gordon, 23, all claiming Bucyrus as their homes, were arrested here last night. It is said by local police the trio is wanted in Bucyrus in connection with an explosion in that city which revealed $2,000 in Liberty bonds hidden in an automobile tire, secured to the rear of a machine.

It was first thought those were the bonds stolen from Harman's store in this city, but investigation showed the bonds had been taken from Nova, Ohio. The trio are in city prison awaiting the arrival of Bucyrus authorities.

Hankz Held on Lunacy Charges

After being released from city prison yesterday, W. A. Hankz, 37, Alexandria, Ind., was re-arrested last night and lodged in city prison on a lunacy charge. Hankz was arrested Thursday night on the same charge, however, after an investigation yesterday by Chief Roush, he was released. Last night, police say, the man was arrested on Main street, after he had partially undressed himself. It is probable Hankz will be taken before Judge Becker on a lunacy charge.

STANDS FOR BETTER CITY GOVERNMENT

Statement of City Auditor Rupert

Lima, Ohio, July 19th, 1919.

Editor Times-Democrat.

I believe the people of Lima are entitled to a statement of the facts contained in the Examiner's report recently filed, covering the City Auditor's Office.

The technical finding made against Safety Director Hiner and myself was the direct result of a difference in opinion between City Solicitor Melvin C. Light and the Examiner, and I believed then and still believe in Mr. Light's opinions, and would not hesitate to honor the Safety Director's voucher, if it bore our legal advisor's O. K. No one can dispute the fact that it was not done for the best interests of this city, or that any loss has been sustained. The examiner rules that the regular appropriation fund to the Safety Department must reimburse the Fire Department Equipment Fund, which means a transfer ordinance be passed.

The finding made against this office on account acting as Sinking Fund Secretary is caused from the fact of a new opinion by Attorney General to the effect that the City must pay the full salary of the Auditor and Secretary, instead of the manner in which it has been handled in the past fifteen years, wherein Council determines the amount the Auditor shall receive and by ordinance specifies the amount the Auditor shall pay; the result being that the Sinking Fund receives the benefit of a trained municipal accountant, which they must have, as their work is highly technical. The past method of handling is the best and most economical for the City as the new ruling will result in the City paying for all outside secretary to the Sinking Fund. The above method of split salaries is maintained with our City Solicitors and Criminal Court Clerk, the City and County each paying a part, which in my judgment is the most economical method.

In conclusion the Examiner states that all records of the Ohio uniform system of accounting are fully installed and kept by the City Auditor, and were found free from errors; both in the City and Sinking Fund accounts and when it is understood that the examination covers expenditures and receipts totaling several million dollars, I feel that I have been fortunate in not making any errors that would cause loss to the city. My office is and as long as I remain Auditor will be open to the full publicity as I believe the people are entitled to know the facts.

Respectfully submitted,

DAVID L. RUPERT, City Auditor.

Sworn to before me and subscribed in my presence this 19th day of July, 1919.

J. H. HAMILTON,

Notary Public, Allen County, Ohio.

THE RAMBLER'S COLUMN

The old song said "And he Rambled all Around."

If you will stand at the corner of Metcalf and Market street for half an hour, most any day, you will get some real thrills. And other corners no doubt furnish the same "amusement."

It is nothing short of miraculous that a serious accident has not occurred, the way the machines are driven.

One evening this week two cars met head on at Metcalf and Market and there would have been a mighty serious accident had not one driver gone right up on the sidewalk with his machine. As it was the machines hit and one was damaged quite a bit.

Sitting out on my front porch last night I saw a car come tearing past not running a bit less than 50 miles an hour. A few moments before four children had been playing in the street and it just happened they had gone into a neighboring yard. At the rate the man was driving they could not have escaped.

It is useless to say the police can stop all this fast driving. The police can't be everywhere at once. Too bad the licenses of those who lack sense in driving their cars can not be revoked.

While you have been cursing the street car service in Lima, or the lack of it, have you noticed one thing?

That one thing is that people who drive automobiles are mighty generous about stopping their cars and taking in folks waiting on the cars. I think I have ridden down town at least three out of five times in an automobile while waiting for the cars.

While this street car service question is being agitated it might be well to add that the company loses a lot of money because people refuse to wait 12 minutes for a car. Lima is too big a town for 12 minute service to be satisfactory.

But it is mighty fine to know that owners of automobiles "take in their friends and neighbors," and be it said to their credit that they take in people they never saw before, for that matter.

Shows a fine spirit, don't you think?

The last services in the old Christ church, Episcopal, tomorrow, brings to mind that Rev. Kirk O'Ferrall, the pastor, is a live wire minister.

Rev. O'Ferrall is of the progressive type that is becoming more and more prominent in the ministry. Churches are beginning to awaken to the fact that progressive business methods are good in church work as elsewhere and that church attendance and interest may easily be increased by proper methods.

Down in southern Ohio, we know a town where they have union services every Sunday evening and a big advertisement is carried in the local papers each Saturday evening. The "returns," as advertisers speak of it, have been highly satisfactory.

Last Wedding in The Old Church

A very quiet and simple wedding was that of Saturday at 1 o'clock when Miss Ruth Crites, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. D. Crites, of Kempton, became the bride of Raymond Cranston, son of Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Cranston, of Columbus. The ceremony was performed in the Christ Episcopal Church, by the Reverend Kirk B. O'Ferrall. It was an especially significant service as it was the last one to be performed in the old church.

Mrs. Cranston is very well known, graduating from Lima High School in class of 1915, and has since been in the offices of the Ohio Electric Company. She has been living at 618 West High street.

The bridegroom is a prominent travelingman, with the William Ritter Lumber Company of Columbus. Following the ceremony they left immediately for their new home in Indianapolis, where they have taken a pretty apartment.

Should We Close Our Store Thursday Afternoon of Each Week for Six Weeks?

Read This! It Is of Interest to You

At a meeting of the Retail Dry Goods and Clothing Merchants of Lima, they signed a petition agreeing to close their places of business (Thursday afternoon) of each week for six weeks, beginning Thursday, July 24. We are not a member of the Business Men's Association, therefore we were not invited to attend said meeting.

We came to Lima to co-operate with the people who patronize us, therefore making it possible for us to establish a business here—and make this our home. We have not signed any agreement to close our store on Thursday afternoon.

We do not believe we should close our place of business in mid-week and dictate to the buying public when they should do their shopping with us. We are here to serve not to be served. We have not said we would not close a half day each week. We are willing to leave the decision with the majority vote of the people in Lima, and surrounding country. Your interests are our interests, without your support we can not remain in your city. We strive to serve you in such a way as to make our dealings more pleasant, always trying to carry out the great principles of the J. C. Penney Co. DO UNTO OTHERS AS YOU WOULD THEY SHOULD DO UNTO YOU is our aim. If you are a friend and customer of ours, we ask you to please give this your prompt attention. We ask you to clip attached coupon and come to our store, place it in the ballot box, expressing your wishes. Remember, each person gets only one vote. Fill out coupon, signing your full name and address and vote YES or NO.

Be careful how you vote. If the majority vote YES we will close our store Thursday noon of each week, beginning July 24, but if the majority vote NO, we will remain open to serve you as usual.

STREET CAR CRISIS AFFECTS INDUSTRIES

WASHINGTON, July 19.—The financial crisis in the electric railway industry can have a widespread and disastrous effect on every business, Francis H. Sisson, vice-president of the Guaranty Trust Co. of New York, today told the federal electric railway commission.

"In facing this situation," Mr. Sisson said, "public authorities should not forget that they are holding in their hands the credit of their cities, savings banks, life insurance companies, other investment institutions and a large portion of the invested wealth of the country."

Mr. Sisson said the average purchasing power of the dollar had decreased about 50 per cent since 1914, but that the secret railway companies in most instances had continued operation under the fixed rate of five cents. A long period of "tight money," was predicted because of the great draft which the rehabilitation of Europe will make upon the world's capital.

Attack Invalid While He Sleeps

CLEVELAND, O., July 19.—A bloody, home made dagger, with a ground down file for a blade, a stained cotton glove, a razor and an anonymous threatening letter

Kaber, 45, who has been a bed-ridden invalid for months, was attacked while asleep in his home. Fifteen knife wounds were found in his abdomen, thighs and back. Hospital physicians say he cannot live.
